CONGRESS PUSHES ANTI-UNION BILL

Steel Profiteers Demand Outrageous Price Boost

Encouraged by the Truman administration's obvious readiness to yield as much as possible to their extortionate demands, monopolists of steel, auto, electrical equipment, packing and other basic industries are pressing for outrageous price increases before they will concede to the just wage demands of the country's striking workers.

The steel industry, shut down tight for more than two weeks, on January 28 stated through Irving S. Olds, chairman of U.S. Steel, that before have begun to organize parades and demonstrations. including marches on state capitols, in support of their demands.

Today there is scarcely a picket line in which women workers and wives of workers are not prominent. In every sphere of strike activity women are playing a yeoman. role, from combatting police terror on the picket lines to organizing strike kitchens.

What has been especially gratifying in this land of capitalist-inspired Jim Crow is the solidarity between white and Negro workers. Even the most backward white workers are now learning the real meaning of union and class brotherhood from the example of fighting solidarity being displayed by the doubly-oppressed Negro workers.

White-Collar Workers March

Another extremely significant development is the growing union-consciousness of the white collar workers. In ever greater numbers they are moving toward union organization and taking the road of labor struggle, as in the national telephone workers' strike. Many are today marching on the industrial workers' picket lines.

In many communities, small merctants, farmers and professional people are lining up openly behind organized Isbor, supporting the strikes with finances, food and other aid.

The strike wave has conclusively demonstrated that the organized labor movement is capable of rallying the overwhelming portion of the population behind it and of providing leadership to every oppressed layer of the people in the fight against the rule of monopoly capitalism.

It is already apparent that this unprecedented strike struggle, although not yet concluded, has won certain immediate material gains. Many workers, it is almost certain, will secure higher wages which, for the time being, will offset in part the previous price inflation and loss of overtime pay.

More Enduring Gains

More enduring gains of utmost importance for labor's future, however, will come from the increased confidence, consciousness and education this struggle is giving the workng class. It is not only strengthening the workers' unity but hardening them in class combat. From this strike wave is emerging a host of tested unionists with leadership ability, providing the workers with a new source of militant leadership.

This strike wave has also developed a deepening political consciousness among the workers. This is partially reflected in the broader demands which they have advanced.

The general wage demand itself has been based on the broad conception of the sliding scale of wages and The workers are consciously demanding wage hours. scales sufficient to maintain an undiminished total income despite less hours of work and loss of overtime. This demand is also directed against unemployment and is designed to prevent employers from exploiting one section of the workers for long hours while others are thrown out of jobs.

Demands Of Basic Importance

portant section of the working class, the General Motors rights" unemployment insurance law which permits Stateeuto workers, has advanced demands directly bearing on controlled agencies to deny compensation to striking Division. It was the Stalinists who ran interference for the most fundamental question posed by the deepening workers. crisis of capitalism: What class shall control the economy?

the steel and electrical equipment workers to join forces with the GM strikers. They wilted under government pressure and surrendered a good portion of the workers' wage demands in advance of any real battle. In no sense did they follow the best features of the GM strike. They sought rather to restrict the struggle to the narrow plane of "pure and simple" wage demands and opposed the broad, forwardlooking demands raised by the GM workers.

The CIO leaders attempted to forestall the inevitable conflict by their customary back-room deals in Washington. What they especially hoped for was some sort of fav- Soviet Union. orable government intervention or such minimum concessions from the corporations as would provide a sufficient pretext for calling off the scheduled strikes. Therefore, they made no preparations for a real battle. They proceeded throughout on the basis of hasty improvisations rather than by a real plan and unified strategy.

It is in the very midst of the struggle that the CIO leaders have suddenly started to clamor about the federal tax laws which are helping to finance corporation strikebreaking out of the U.S. Treasury. > That is why they did not foresee, let alone prepare for, the present unparalleled conflict between the working class and the big capitalist rulers of American economy.

> An especially perfidious role has been played in the present struggle by the Stalinists. They have been followpalm themselves off as "militants," they are actually undermining the interests of the workers in conformity with the reactionary dictates of the Stalin bureaucracy in the

Perfidious Role Of Stalinists

The Stalinists in recent weeks have been yelling radical phrases at the top of their lungs. They even called for "extension of the strikes." But in every union where they have a significant influence, the Stalinists tried to stall strike action. It was such unions as the CIO Electrical Workers, dominated by the Stalinists, which made the greatest concession on wage demands to the employers in advance of strike action.

For nearly eight weeks, the UE leaders ignored the pleas of the striking General Motors auto workers to call out the 30,000 UE members working in the GM Electrical the top UAW leaders in preventing Ford Local 600 from passing a resolution condemning the treacherous "company security" plan when it was first proposed by the CIO auto union's Ford Division director, Richard T. Leonard. Now, the Stalinists have crowned their treacherous conduct by unleashing an "anti-Trotskyist" red-baiting own party, the workers will then have the major requisites campaign against the GM militants, thus offering a springboard to General Motors for launching a large-scale redscare in an attempt to divide and disorient the GM strikers. Once more the Stalinists have revealed themselves as the most unscrupulous enemies of the workers within the labor movement.

Otheir government had conspired in advance to rob the workers of any wage gains through price inflation.

This is all part of Wall Street's preparation for the next stage of its struggle against labor. That preparation includes laws to cripple the unions and their fighting power. It also means an attempt to secure provisions in union contracts which would enable the corporations to victimize union militants and restore the open shop.

One of the most treacherous concessions which the union leaders in oil, auto and other industries are making to the employers, is the agreement to "company security." including permission to the companies to victimize union militants for so-called "unauthorized strikes." At the same time, the corporations are demanding elimination of union security, such as maintenance of membership and the union shop.

Labor Faces Future Offensive

Every move of the corporations and their government points up the fact that the present strikes will have settled no decisive issues. Once the present strike wave has receded, labor will face a further and more ruthless Big Business offensive. The workers will have to fight against terrific inflation, new anti-labor legislation, vast corporation grabs from the public treasury.

These and many other issues are already becoming life-and-death matters for the working class. None of these issues can be resolved except through political means.

All the positive gains which labor will have won through its magnificent strike struggles will be lost unless the workers are prepared for the next stage of the struggle. And that preparation means above all a genuine labor political program and a party to fight for that program.

The workers will be successful in the inevitable great conflicts ahead only if they are prepared to battle politically. But despite the magnificent industrial organizations they have built, the organized workers are crippled by lack of their own class political machinery to contest the capitalists on the decisive political arena.

Union Ranks Want Labor Party

There are numerous indications that the union ranks desire genuine independent labor political action. That, is the meaning of the tremendous vote given labor's candidate, UAW Vice President Richard Frankensteen, in the Detroit mayoralty election last November. Numerous local ing a devious and two-faced policy. While attempting to union bodies have already gone on record for a labor party. In some cities, such as Seattle, committees of active unionists are organizing to work for the formation. of a labor party.

The top union leaders cannot be depended upon to advance the necessary effective program in preparation for the political struggle which faces labor in the period ahead. It can be expected that they will attempt to sidetrack the movement for an independent labor party and a clean-cut break with all capitalist politicians and capitalist political machines.

It is up to the tested union militants who are the real backbone of the present magnificent strike struggles to provide the leadership in the movement for a labor party.

A new and different kind of labor leadership is required if the workers are to triumph in the stormy conflicts that lie ahead. That means men and women with fighting hearts, unshakable loyalty to labor's interests, a thorough grasp of the great class issues and a genuine working-class political program. With such a leadership and program, and with their for success in the next phase of their fight: the struggle for real labor political power against the rule of Big Business and its Democratic and Republican machines.

The General Motors strikers have spearheaded the whole strike struggle and have been primarily responsible for wresting recommendations for wage concessions from ers supported during the war and helped to keep in ofthe government. Unions Helpless On Political Field

It is in its relations with the capitalist government and on the decisive political arena that the labor movement has revealed the most glaring weakness during the course of the strike wave. In every instance where the struggle has had to be waged on the political plane, the unions have sions are made, was followed the Corporation, is determined to hibeen helpless.

O'Dwyer And Stalinists

During the 1945 mayoralty campaign. Farrell Dobbs, Socialist Workers Party candidate for Mayor of New York, warned the workers about the Democratic candidate William O'-Dwyer's proposal to almost double the police force. Over the radio on October 26, 1945, Dobbs predicted:

"There is every likelihood that this tremendous increase in the police force is aimed directly at the workers who dare to exercise their legal rights to strike and peacefully picket."

This prediction has been confirmed during the very first month that O'Dwyer has been in office. The ex-cop O'Dwyer's augmented police force is being used as a brutal strikebreaking agency against the striking Western Union workers of the CIO American Communications Association in New York.

At Western Union's central office in downtown New York, hundreds of O'Dwyer's cops have been on hand every day since the beginning of the strike. They form a passageway through which scabs pass in and out of the building.

On January 23, when the pickets attempted to stop the scabs, hundreds of O'Dwyer's policemen assaulted the pickets with clubs, injuring several and arresting ten. Thus O'Dwyer encourages strikebreaking against the lowpaid workers of one of the most ruthless corporations in the country.

No sooner had O'Dwyer stepped in to the Mayor's office than he came forward with a proposal to increase the sales tax from one to two per cent. This tax, paid largely by working people, would place an added strain on their already heavily taxed wages. Since sales and tax refunds for Big Business is clearly calculated to aid strikebreaking corporations and to help Wall Street in its attempts to weaken and crush the unions. The fact that these discriminatory laws were put over by Democrats and Republicans alike provides further proof of the urgent need for a Labor Party. Representatives of an independent Labor Party would fight not only to prevent passage of such laws. They would fight for legislation to protect the welfare of the workers as against the greedy plutocrats.

Murray's Proposal

Philip Murray, president of the Steelworkers Union, on January 23 declared: "The American Government owns over $1,000,000,000 worth of the most modern steel plant facilities now under control of the very corporations which have flouted the President's decision (to raise wages by 18½ cents an hour). These facilities should either be made available for private operation by individuals such as Henry J. Kaiser who, in the interest of the nation, has accepted the President's wage decision for his steel employes, or should be operated by the Government until the steel corporations accept the President's decision."

Why should these vast government-financed steel facilities be turned over to Henry J. Kaiser or any other capitalist? The only qualification Kaiser has ever demonstrated is his culiar ability to enrich himself out of . public treasury. Hasn't Kaiser reaped end. profits from the battlefields of the Second World War without turning over to him an additional billion dollars worth of public property? Why were these government-owned steel fa-' cilities, paid for by the people, handed over to the big monopoly corporations in the first place? Why is Murray willing to let the corporations retain these publicly-built facilities. or, if seized temporarily, to get them back when they "accept the President's decision?"

The corporations have no right whatever to the publicly-financed facilities which they have operated only to enrich themselves and which they would rather shut down than pay the steel workers a decent living wage.

We support Murray's demand for government operation of the Defense Plant Corporation facilities. We favor government operation of all idle plants. But neither Kaiser, Fairless, Grace, nor any other capitalist should have any control over or profit from these plants. They should be placed under workers' control.

Workers' control would effectively end the stranglehold of the bosses and their Washington agents on the steel industry, for the workers would then have the decisive word in running the plants.

The correct demand to raise, therefore, is the one long proposed by the Socialist Workers Party: "Government operation of all idle and government-built plants under workers' control!"

Yalta Robber Deal

One of the secret deals made at Yalta by Stalin, Churchill and Roosevelt has now been bared. When Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson said he believed a secret agreement at Yalta last February gave Russia simply the "right" to "occupy" the Kurile islands, Stalin's official news agency, Tass, corrected him. It was agreed, said Tass, that "the Kurile Islands would be handed over to the USSR." So secret was the deal, admitted Byrnes, that not even he found out about it until after V-J Day although he was at Yalta. Moreover, to this day he has not seen the full memorandum despite the fact he is Secretary of State! Truman then said that the complete text of the secret horsetrade is in the files of the President-presumably left there by Roosevelt. Truman intimated that besides the Kuriles deal there were "other" secret agreements In this accidental way, the people of the world learned about one of the "commitments" Wall Street talks about when it insists troops must remain overseas. They are the secret commitments dividing up the world among the Big Three and the commitments to put down colonial rebellions and workingclass revolutions. What should be the attitude of the workers toward these secret commitments? The Bolsheviks along ago pointed out that the workers can safeguard their class interests only by unqualified opposition to secret diplomacy. The Bolsheviks placed high on their banner "Down with secret treaties" And one of the first acts of the Soviet Union under Lenin and Trotsky after the workers took power was the publication of all the sordid, secret imperialist deals found in the files of the Czar. The Yalta secret deals underline once more the correctness of the Bolshevik position. Stalin, Churchill and Roosevelt kept their unholy agreements dead secrets because they could not stand the light of day. Stalin, Churchill and Roosevelt did not represent the peoples of the earth at their conferences. In the United States, for instance, Roosevelt did not even consult Congress. far less the people. Churchill likewise did not consult Parliament, far less the people. Churchill and Roosevelt represented Anglo-American imperialism. And Stalin of course did not even consult his own hand-picked legislative bodies, far less the people of the Soviet Union. Stalin represented the bureaucratic caste that usurped power in the USSR. The secret deal on the Kurlles is only one item of the many on which the unholy three made a compact against the peoples of the earth. The other sordid deals still remain secret. Let these secret agreements be made public! Drag the rotten undercover horsetrades out into the light of day! Then the people of the world can judge the real aims of the imperialists and their agents who plunged hu manity into the Second World War.

Unemployment Compensation For Vets

Tens of thousands of ex-GIs now on strike are denied the unemployment compensation provided by the so-called GI Bill of Rights. Payments under this shameful legislation are miserably low-$20 a week. But even this pittance is withheld precisely when the veterans need it most.

This flows from a coldly calculated policy on the part of political representatives of big business who drafted the GI Bill and who now administer it. They hope by these measures to demoralize and make strike-breakers out of the veterans.

The government's attitude is all the more insulting and arrogant when contrasted with its generous treatment of big businessmen. Employers made huge profits and lived in fabulous luxury all during the war while the GIs were fighting and suffering in foxholes overseas.

CORPORATION REBATES

Continuing the same policy of favoring employers, Congress passed legislation which provides payment to corporations of 85.5 per cent of any losses sustained by failing to produce, plus huge rebates on surplus profits taxes.

General Motors, for example, will collect $100,000,-000 from the government in refunds from excess profits taxes paid during the war, plus 85.5 per cent of its deficit, even if its plants don't turn a wheel this year.

Veterans are beginning to raise their voices in angry protest against the government's financing of strikebreaking corporations and refusal to pay unimployment compensation to ex-GIs on strike.

The first important action was taken at the beginning of the General Motors strike by the UAW-CIO City-Wide Veterans Committee. A demonstration was called by a meeting of 1,000 striking UAW veterans. The GIs who responded to the call on January 7 picketed the headquarters of the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Commission in Detroit. The angry veterans carried banners with slogans such as: "GM Gets Tax Rebates: We want Our Unemployment Compensation Under the GI Bill of Rights."

VETERANS' ACTION

On January 24, 1945, 600 striking veterans from cities in Pennsylvania took action reminiscent of the great Bonus March of 1932 when thousands of jobless veterans converged on Washington and demanded favorable action on their claims. Striking ex-GIs from Pittsburgh, Erie, Farrell and Sharon marched on the Pennsylvania capitol in Harrisburg where they demanded a special session of the State Legislature to vote a veterans' bonus and provide striking veterans with state unemployment compen-

In Indiana Harbor, 150 striking veterans-members of the CIO United Steel Workers-responded to a call of the union veterans' committees for a meeting on January 24. The men demanded that the Veterans Administration grant them the readjustment pay provided by the GI Bill for the duration of the strike.

The Mahoning County CIO Council, Youngstown, Ohio, set up a committee on January 22 to launch an aggressive state-wide campaign to amend the Ohio Unemployment Compensation law to provide payments for both workers and veterans out on strike.

The Veterans Committee of the Buffalo CIO Council has likewise protested against the government's refusal to pay veterans' compensation while they are on strike. The Committee pointed out that veterans were unable to collect social security because they had only recently returned to work. It demanded unemployment pay for veterans regardless of the reason for unemployment.

These are extremely encouraging signs. The worker-veterans are not willing to put up with the discriminatory actions of Wall Street's government. Especially noteworthy is the fact that veterans and workers are engaged in united action against the Government and Big Business. Their struggle must be supported to the hilt. Demand unemployment compensation for veterans out on strike!

taxes fall most harshly on the poor, O'Dwyer's proposal has been loudly applauded by the big real estate interests and banks.

These actions show what a crime the Stalinists committed against the New York workers by supporting O'Dwyer. Even now, the Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist Party, plays down O'Dwyer's strikebreaking and scab-herding role in the Western Union strike and his proposal for an increased sales tax.

Intent on preserving the unholy alliance of the Communist Party with Tammany Hall, the Stalinists are whitewashing and concealing the anti-labor role of O'Dwyer, helpingto undermine the courageous struggle of the Western Union workers, and facilitating O'-Dwyer's scheme to tax the poor for the benefit of the rich.

Tax Rebates

Nothing has so enraged the vast army of striking workers as the fact that while they are compelled either to go without relief of any kind or exist on a mere pittance, the big corporations, whose arrogance forced them out on strike, are being handsomely cared for by huge tax-refund handouts.

In most states, although workers are required to make regular payments into the state unemployment compensation fund, men and women on strike are not permitted to collect unemployment insurance.

In the few states where they can apply for compensation while on strike, they are subjected to long delays and must wade through endless 'red-tape. In the end, what they do receive is a completely inadequate allowance, scarcely sufficient to maintain bare existence. Most of the veterans have not worked long enough to accumulate benefits and cannot collect state unemployment insurance. While on strike they receive nothing under provisions of the GI Bill.

The government's agents of Big Business have craftly worked out and enforced this policy in an attempt to starve out workers.

The government's treatment of the corporations stands in glaring contrast to that accorded the workers. Tax measures passed by Congress during the war permit the big industrialists access to twenty billion dollars in post-war refunds.

This anti-union war chest provided by the government for the big corporations is eleven billion dollars more than the total net corporation profits in the boom year of 1929.

Finally the Speaker hauled out the House Rules and Manual and quoted from Section 371 of this bible: "It is a breach of order in debate to notice what has been said on the same subject in the other House, or the particular 'Murray of Wisconsin became so

And I mean all of us, too."

American Big Business is trying to engineer an $8-billion tax refund swindle under just one single "relief" provision of the federal tax laws, according to a report of the Bureau of Internal Revenue to the Congressional Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation on January 24.

The Bureau's report was in reply to powerful Congressional pressure, headed by Senator Walter George, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. George and others are demanding speedy payment without proper investigation of what the Bureau termed "fantastic" claims of the corporations for billions in tax rebates for alleged "hardship cases.'

This so-called "relief" provision written into the tax laws permits the repayment to corporations of excess profits taxes paid during the war in what are termed "hardship cases." The language of the provision is so broad that virtually every corporation is putting in claims for, "relief."

The total of such claims already filed is $3,700,-000,000 (that's billions)-and that's just for the first year of the war. Most of the claims for the later years of the war haven't yet been filed, the Bureau reports. These, it estimates, will bring the total claims to $8,000,000,000.

The payment of many claims, states the Bureau, would amount to virtual repeal of the wartime excess profits law. Congressional representatives of Wall Street are trying to get all claims paid without investigation, although, the Bureau reports, careful study of the claims will take years. In this connection, the Bureau recalled the charges of "grand larceny" which followed the payment of similar refunds after the first World War.

Of the 1.177 corporations with over $10,000,000 assets which paid 1942 excess profits taxes, 443 or 38 per cent filed refund claims as "hardship" cases. These 443 of the biggest corporations asked for almost half of the total amount claimed by 13,407 companies applying for refunds.

This is just one of the jokers in the tax law which guarantees corporate profits even if industry shuts down. There are also the "carry-back" refunds from which the corporations figure to swindle billions for the U.S. treasury. Finally, there is a flat 10 per cent rebate on all wartime excess profits taxes paid, not to speak of the plan for 5-year amortization of government-built plants out of taxes. The grand total of the tax steals is variously estimated at between $50-billion and $60-billion.

Why Big Business Profiteers Are Trying To Blame Strike Leader Calls CP Story Inflation Upon Labor's Demand For Living Wages "Pack Of Lies"

By William F. Warde

At the same time that the big corporations | rests entirely upon the capitalist rulers and their are fighting against adequate wage increases, they government at Washington. The current inflation are conspiring to smash all price controls and clamoring for outrageous price increases.

On the one hand corporation spokesmen howl that they cannot afford to meet the wage deso, prices would shoot upward in a ruinous inflationary spiral. They even have the gall to contend that, since this will happen, the workers any wage increases they might win by strike action.

refusing to settle the strikes unless and until the administration grants them greatly increased prices for their products. Thus, Irving S. Olds, chairman of the board of U. S. Steel, last week called for an outrageous price rise in excess of $6.50 a ton for steel. Henry Ford 2nd followed up by telegraphing Reconversion Chief Snyder that government control of prices should be promptly removed.

Profits Above All

Why does Big Business resist wage increases on the pretext that these will spur inflation, while it simultaneously plots to wreck all price controls and extort huge price increases which are bound to speed up inflation? The explanation is simple. The corporations are aiming to defend their profit inprests_those blood-stained profits they piled up during the war and the added billions they expect to grab from future production.

All their talk about the "danger of inflation" is designed to conceal this central fact and thereby deceive the workers and deny their, just wage demands.

It should be understood, first of all, that an increase in wages does not necessarily bring about increased prices. It does mean, however, a direct and immediate reduction in the capitalists' rate of profit. That is why employers at all times stubbornly resist the wage demands of their work-

That is also why the capitalists who now falsely argue that wage increases bring about inflation, do not dare to face this question: Why, during of living, the prices of food, clothing and all the the war, while wage rates were frozen, did their elementary necessities, will inevitably go higher profits go 250 per cent above 1939 levels and the cost of living double? The mere statement of these facts shows that inflation does not have its source in wage increases

Wages And Prices

The unions have proved that the big corporations can easily pay the demanded increases out of war profits and capital reserves without raising prices. This fact is so irrefutable that companies such as General Motors have refused to open their books to union inspection and arrogantly assert that they do not recognize ability to pay as a factor in determining wage increases.

Even though the unions have shown that increased labor productivity and improved plant efficiency alone will enable the companies to easily substantial wage increases. The most effective absorb wage increases, still the big corporations keep insisting that wages be held down while prices must be boosted!

is a direct consequence of the Second World War, its ruin, its wastefulness, its colossal costs.

For over four years, instead of producing homes, clothing, household appliances, autos, etc. the facmands of the unions and that if they should do tories have turned out shells, guns, tanks, bombers. This war economy has prevented the people from getting the goods they needed during the war and created the present scarcities. Moreover, to finance themselves would derive little or no benefit from its imperialist slaughter, the capitalist government accumulated an astronomical national debt of almost $300-billion, thereby inflating the cur-On the other hand, the big corporations are rency and cutting the real purchasing value of the dollar.

Government's Role

These inflationary factors have been further reinforced by unrestrained profiteering and speculation. In war time, through cost-plus contracts, subsidies and other devices, the government guaranteed high profits to the capitalists while freezing workers' wages."

Ever since the war ended, Big Business has been conducting a relentless campaign to maintain its enormous profits and even augment them. Again the President and Congress have been lending a helping hand. /

Congress eliminated the excess profits tax. It has provided for corporate tax refunds of more than $20-billion, guaranteeing high profit levels. And now, under pressure from the corporations which have launched an all-out assault on price curbs, the government is scrapping one control after another and yielding to the extortionate price demands of Wall Street.

What Labor Faces

What will be the consequences of this Big Business holdup and Truman's surrender to the Wall Street bandits?

First: it guarantees a continuation of unrestrained profiteering. Anticipating these lush profits, the stock market is booming to heights unsurpassed since 1929.

Second: it means an enormous impetus to inflation, new and bigger boosts in prices. The costs and higher.

Third: this total breakdown of price controls and granting of price rises will lead to the cancellation of labor's wage gains won in battle on the picket lines.

Thus it is not wage increases which are serving to create and to accelerate inflation. Inflation arises from the anarchy of the rotting capitalist system and the destructiveness caused by its reacsystem and the destructiveness caused by its reactionary wars.

It is being aggravated by the insatiable greed for profits of the financial and industrial magnates. It is being facilitated and encouraged by the capitalist government, which Big Business controls and maintains in power.

It is precisely because of this capitalist-fostered inflation that the workers are obliged to fight for way to combat the vicious consequences of the growing inflation that the profiteers and their agents in Washington are inflicting upon the It is true that inflation, expressed in the soaring American people is for labor to demand a rising

This attack on the minorities by failure to grant them job equality is by no means an isolated plank in the present Congressional program. It is directly tied up with the anti-labor measures which are being cooked up and poured down the throat of the working class.

To abolish the right to strike for which we fought would be a blow against all labor. To permit the employers iree rein be continue their discrimination against minority groups and thus drive a wedge into the working class is equally a blow against labor. To fail to understand the relation of this farcical filibuster auginst the FEPC to the reactionary anti-labor bills now being proposed. is to cast aside our main weapon of struggle against them both. WHAT CAN BE DONE

How, then, are the members of racial minorities ever going to overcome the painful evils of job discrimination? - How can we illegalize and eradicate that all too familiar barrier which is met at so many places of employment — "Help Wanted: White Only?"

The most effective measure that could be used at present would be militant mass action directed against the stooges of Big Business in the Halls of Congress. A Congress of Labor as opposed to this Congress of Profiteers, with a Mass March of all labor, Negro and white on Washington. Both the CIO and the AFL have come out against antistrike legislation and for FEPC. To back up these demands with such a show of mass strength is the best way for the workers to maintain those concessions they have won in the past.

In addition to this the membership of each local union should agitate for the incorporation into all new contracts of a no-discrimination clause. Such a clause would put real teeth into the present wage demands and further solidarize all the workers.

In the final analysis, of course, the American workers urgently straight out." He laughs at himself after an intolerable day in the heat: "My shoes were burning up, and I was wet like I'd been out in that lake. I thought they'd have to take me out of that runner with the crane."

A devil-may-care grin on his dirty face, a hough in his throat . . . and deep anger in his heart. It would almost seem that the worker, the average worker, understood clearly. "This isn't the time just yet. The time is coming when all she wrongs and injustices of our life will be righted, the time when we will rise up and right them. But until we do, we'll make the best of a bad situation and get a few laughs out of it."

The reason why I'm writing these things is inis: One of the fellows showed me a verse he had with him today. It was the words for a song to the tune of "The Old Apple Tree." I thought is showed some of the things a furnace man has to put up with. Here's the song:

O, my poor pappy worked in a steel plant On a furnace making iron out of ore; And each day he'd sweat and smoulder As he rapidly grew older In that steel mill on the Great Lakes' smoky shore. Benefamilie and the worked in the midst of the fire In the midst of the molten metal's glare. And he coughed and choked and cussed As his lungs filled up with dust.

Then one day as he worked on the furnace In that steel mill on the Great Lake's smoky shore

With a mission that was fatal. He fell into a ladle, And now my poor, dear pappy is no more

So the steel plant sent a man mammy:

"Now we're sorry," he said, "sorry as can Please accept this check of money To make up for your honey-

Five hundred dollars worthy of sympathy!"

And now it's my turn to work on the furnace With my dear, departed pappy's old crowd. So each day I work and wait till I'll wind up in a ladle And join my pappy in an iron shroud.

That gives you an idea of some phases of a steel worker's life, and I think it shows also the attitude that we tend to take. It reminds me of one of the standard stories the fellows tell.

"Oh, it's not so bad now as it used to be." they say. "Why, twenty years ago when I came here to work, the man at the gate told me. 'Well, we haven't got any jobs right now, but you just wait here a while, and when somebody gets killed. you can have his job.' So I waited about twenty minutes until they carried some guy out in a wagon, and then they sent me in to work." But don't get the idea that since these workers laugh at the pain and peril of their work they feel no other emotion. Some of these things they laugh at aren't at all funny. The only way I can explain it is that the anger rises up in their throats and pushes the laughter out. But, as I said, that's only temporary. The resentment and wrath of the workers is smouldering beneath the surface and building up the pressure that will shatter the shell that now holds it.

Some day out laughter will have a lighter ring.

"She was still in war gray. However, she was a sorry-looking sight as the gray was streaked with rust stains which somehow reminded me of a little girl with a tear-stained face. Then as I stepped on deck the real tragedy struck me. She had been stripped of all the gear which made her proud when she was a working lady. Now she was like a waitress without any arms ---still able to move from spot to spot but unable to do any work. Soon she would be unable even to move.

"We soon got under way and it was not long before we were at Suisun Bay, the graveyard for ships in San Francisco Bay, When the fleet of dead ships comes into view it looks like a forgrowing out of the water Ar

'There is plenty of time for there will be many more after me.' This brought other thoughts to mind. Or should I rather say, questions?

"What did all this cost in the blood and sweat and tears of the workers who built them? (Not to mention the cost in money. Two of us put together our meager knowledge of ship costs and we both agreed that at a conservative estimate'the ships represented 200 million dollars.) "Then a new question arose. What was going to happen to these ships? We, the crew who shifted the lady, discussed her possible future. Was she to be broken up for scrap? Maybe. Some of these probably would be. Was she ever to have a useful life again and if so how? Maybe she would go to some foreign country? Would she be sold to an American ship operator? Or would she perhaps just lie there?

"Then this question arose: what was the sense of keeping the ships and paying watchmen to tend them and be a burden on the people? Why not just take the ships out to sea and give them a decent burial? Why not return them to the elements they once rode so proudly? I don't know, but if you ask Mr. J. P. Morgan he may be able to explain it all to you.

The following indignant letter comes from one of the veterans gassed by the Los Angeles police January 17 on the picket line of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, CIO, at the U.S. Electrical Motors plant. A detailed report of this police terror appeared in The Militant February 2.

Editor:

I was a private in an Infantry Division in the Army of the United States. I was wounded and captured at the time of "The Bulge" on the Siegfried Line. I spent three months in the prison camp at Nuremburg.

It was a war against fascism and for democracy, we were told.

We were also told, by our officers, that the Germans would use every trick in the bag to wipe us out. Repeatedly we were warned of the unscrupulous tactics of the S.S. Troops and the hated Gestapo.

Most of the time in France our gas masks were left in our duffle-bags. Just before moving up on the Siegfried we were ordered to wear them again. But the Germans never used gas on us.

I HAD TO COME BACK TO THE UNITED STATES TO GET THAT FROM OUR AMERICAN GESTAPO. ALONG WITH MANY OTHER VETERANS ON THE U.S. MOTORS PICKET LINE, I GOT A GOOD DOSE OF TEAR GAS FROM THE LOS ANGELES POLICE ON JANUARY 17.

Armed with guns and clubs, and wearing gas masks and helmets, over one hundred cops charged our peaceful picket line. Swinging their clubs and shooting their teargas guns, they on came down us unmercifully.

Anyone who has seen the daily papers must have noticed the picture of the veteran with four overseas stripes on his sleeve, being clubbed viciously by one of these "stormtroopers.'

Nazified As Any S.S. Troops

Women as well as men were clubbed. These cops were as Nazified as any S.S. troops I had seen in Germany. None of the Gestapo agents at the prison camp were any more arrogant.

I gave three and half of the best years of my life to what they said was a war for democracy and the "Four Freedoms." I thought it was my democratic right to peacefully picket an employer who wouldn't pay enough to meet the high cost of living.

But now we veterans are shown what we fought for.

When, on the following day a committee of CIO unionists charged the police with brutality and strikebreaking, Mayor Bowron asserted that the charges were unwarranted and that his administration was determined to preserve "law and order."

Those of us who have participated in strikes for a decent standard of living now know what they mean by "Law and Order."

The only answer to this is a Labor Party. We need city officials from the ranks of labor.

Remember Fontana! By Evelyn Atwood

The fourth victim of the tragic Fontana, California fire, O'Day Short, has just died. He was critically burned last month in the same flames which consumed his wife and two young children and destroyed his home. The wiping out of this Negro family resulted from an explosion due to mysterious origins SHORILY AFTER O'DAY SHORT HAD BEEN THREATENED WITH VIOLENCE BY WHITE VIGILANTES.

Despite hospital precautions to keep the news from him, District Attorney Kavanaugh informed Short of the terrible fate of his family. He could not survive this added shock.

So far as all the collaborators in this "white supremacy" crime are concerned, the case is plosed.

Closed for the local "law enforcement" agensies. For the deputy sheriff and his men who informed Short that he was living "out of bounds." For District Attorney Kavanaugh who refused to permit any evidence or testimony at the coroner's inquest about the vigilante threats which preceded the 'fire.

Closed for the real estate dealer. J. Sutherland and the former owner of the land, Louis Helfman, who personally delivered these vigilante threats to Short and warned him that "they are a tough bunch to deal with," and would resort to physical violence.

Closed and "white-washed" for the unidentified gångsters who enforced Jim Crow through these murderous methods.

But the Fontana case is not closed and cannot be closed for the 13 million Negroes in this country. It is not closed and cannot be closed for the entire labor movement. For the working people of this country, black and white, the attempt to whitewash the Fontana case is a crime against them all.

8 - 10 - 1

The vigilante threats, made public before the fire, are sufficient in themselves to justify the grave suspicion that this was a case of brutal arson and murder. An arson expert, hired by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, testified that evidence at the scene of the crime indicated that this was more than an "accident."

Some of the associates of the white authorities who refused to properly investigate the the vigilante threats. Thus the Negro community on the West Coast is justified in its contention that the Short family died at the hands of "perpetrators of a fiendish act." (Los Angeles Tribune, January 26.)
