CHICAGO, June 23-Revere Copper and Brass Local 477, CIO United Auto Workers at its meeting here today unanimously adopted a resoluion calling for establishment of a permanent Congress of Labor and a labor party.

The resolution, introduced by the local's executive board, endorsed the UAW'S proposal for a National United Labor Conference of all unions. Such a conference, said the resolution, should have as its purpose to: "1. Establish a permanent Congress of Labor.

"2. Mobilize and call for protest meetings in every section of our country, protesting the antilabor attitude and actions of Congress.

"3. Launch a concerted drive in Washington to present a solid front for labor opposing President Truman's proposed antilabor legislation.

ASK LABOR PARTY The resolution urged that "this Congress of Labor take immediate steps to form an Independent Labor Party, in order to defeat the agents of reactionary Big Business and their lobbyists

Prices are leaping each day and each hour. The inflationary tide, already running stronger and stronger while the OPA bobbed around on it like a leaf, is turning into full flood.

All the false hopes and illusions of price control which the liberals and labor leaders had led the workers to place in the government are being swept away too.

This capitalist government, the pliant tool of Big Business, has no program to halt raging inflation. Any dependence placed upon this government to seriously resist inflation is utter folly.

But Truman, the labor leaders, the Stalinists are trying to revive illusions. They now call piteously for another OPA - a "good" OPA. They hope to persuade Congress to trick out some new measure to palm off once more as "price control."

The workers must not be fooled again by regulated inflation passed off as "price control" and used as a pretext for a wage freeze.

The workers can place dependence only on their own organized strength, their own independent actions. to fight the consequences of capitalist inflation.

Now more than ever, all the unions-CIO, AFL, and Railroad Brotherhoods - must join in united action. They must immediately convene a National Conference of Labor to put forward a program of joint action and mobilize the workers for a real fight.

The first point on the program should be a struggle for the sliding scale of wages to meet all price rises. That is united action. Conferences of the only immediately effective answer to the bounding cost

> The working populace, the poor farmers and lower middle class must be united into mass consumers committees to halt price-gouging by organized means. These committees must apply direct mass pressure on the inflationeers. They must ferret out food stocks and intervene to fix prices themselves. Why India Starves —

British Imperialists Drained Food Supply – By Kamalesh Ray ——

Since the famine of 1943, India is persistently suffering from starvation. We hear of the forecast of a worse famine to some this year-with ten million doomed to die. India's famine has now become an accepted fact.

It is taking its toll uncontrolled by the government which, in India for the British Army, nevertheless, is multiplying its thus forcing grain prices up. committees and commissions to investigate and report on the food situation, without apparing. ently any real prospect of alleviation of the grim situation. For the last three years the government of the country has acted as nothing better than a passive onlooker; and when it intervenes, it only aggravates the situation through maladministration

The people of the world have been given all kinds of misleading explanations about India's food situation. First, that India is not self-sufficient in her food production; secondly, that India has too great a population; hence the famines. The remedy suggested—is to grow more food and to control birth rates.

The truth about India's food situation, however, is something tural soil, the full benefit of like milk, egg, fish, meat and which is not derived by the people because of their low standard of income which deprives them of modern farming practices. In spite of this fact, India produces sufficient food crops to make possible a moderately low standard of subsistence well naturally it does not lead to famine.

Some parts of the country have RICE EXPORTED surplus production in one or another crop, while some other parts have shortages. The over all shortage of food crops in India may be roughly taken to be 10 per cent. According to the Gregory Committee's report, "it is imperative for the India Government to have an import of one million tons of food stuff every year.

If this is her annual deficiency, simple arithmetic shows that one million tons of food stuff per year for 400 million crease of a quarter of an ounce buting this quota over British India only (excluding the Indian states) the amount would not come up to half an ounce.

This report thus indirectly corroborates our contention that the is not so acute as to account for chronic starvation or sweeping famines

Trials Strike At Almost Every Branch Of Industry

The sinister news that has periodically shocked the world working class once again comes from Moscow: Another purge is on. Like its predecessors, the new purge strikes at virtually every sphere of Soviet life.

The very first Moscow report discloses that involved are branches of industry from the still-devastated areas in the Ukraine, through Leningrad to the distant Urals and beyond. Everywhere, government and factory officials are being dismissed, indicted for trial, fined and jailed.

elimination of oppositional elements in the armed forces. HOLLOW BOASTS

These developments prove how hollow were the boasts that the Kremlin's regime had been greatly strengthened by the victorious end of the war. Stalin's rule remains the regime of crisis it has been from its inception. To survive, Stalin is compelled to resort to the same bestial methods of rule - terror and repression — by which he has maintained himself up to now.

The pattern, too, remains essentially the same. The only change is in the wording of the charges against the scapegoats.

During the monstrous 1936-38 blood baths, in which all of Lenges in the Soviet Union as long in's co-workers were slaughtered. the main charge was "sabotage" - in the interests of a foreign capitalist power. The formula for the 1946 purge is "embezzlement." No mention has yet been made of agents of foreign powers, or of "Trotskyists," etc. Not yet,

It's Time To Act

Events of the last week or so in Washington have further underlined the need for a labor party now.

The overwhelming majority of Democrats and Republicans in Congress passed an OPA bill so loaded with inflationary dynamite that Truman did not dare risk the wrath of the people by signing it. They finally scuttled OPA completely to give the legal green light to the inflationeers.

After bleeding the Fair Employment Practices Commission to death for lack of funds, Congress last week consigned it to burial. The one feeble government agency designed to protect the Negro people and other minorities from discrimination in industry was the victim of a Congressional lynching.

Congress shoved through the Hobbs bill which every labor organization has denounced. This bill, put through under the guise of a measure to prevent "robbery' in interstate commerce, contains clauses directly aimed at framing strikers and strike pickets and vactimizing them with long prison sentences.

Not a single person in Congress has fought boldly and militantly for the workers, the lowincome consumers, the Negro people. At best, there are a few feeble voices raised "for the record."

But where are all the CIO-PAC endorsed Congressmen whose election in 1944 was hailed by union leaders as a "progressive victory"? They are either going down the line with the open reactionaries or beating an ignominious retreat

Labor's voice should have resounded last week in the Congressional halls. Instead it was bleating and complaining on the outside. It ernment's powers to protect the meat trust's profit interests.

Today when the meat barons openly and deliberately impose a meat famine on scores of millions of poor people, the government does nothing to protect the populace. Truman admits and complains about the withholding of meat. But he is more concerned "that profits should be 'ample'" than in seeing that the people are properly fed.

Workers need meat! They can get it only if the profiteers' stranglehold on the meat industry is broken.

There is but one answer: EXPROPRIATE THE MEAT TRUST! Let the government take over the meat industry and meat supplies. Let the meat industry be operated under the control of the workers.

Jail the meat trust racketeers! Take over the meat industry! Halt the meat famine and price extortion!

A Prussian Law

As the atomic bomb flashed like distant heat lightning on the clouds of World War III. arousing universal fear of what is to come, President Truman quietly signed a measure of even greater importance to Wall Street's military plans than the spectacular explosion at Bikini.

This measure is the extension of Selective Service. Under its provisions, youths 19 years old will be drafted into the armed services. They can then be sent overseas as replacements in the occupation armies of American imperialism.

Men up to the age of 45 can likewise be drafted. The age limit was obviously designed as a threat to strikers. If the Administration feels so inclined it now has the power to break key strikes by utilizing the draft boards.

The extension of the draft act until March 31 is part and parcel of Wall Street's plan to convert America into a vast Prussianized military camp. Wall Street's dream of world conquest requires for fulfillment huge armies modelled on the lines of the German Wehrmacht. This means converting American youth into a reservoir of heel-clicking, race-hating, professional killers.

Wall Street's military blueprint exceeds in ambition anything conceived by Hitler or the Mikado. The $11,000,000,000 appropriation for the armed forces, virtually approved by Congress, includes expenditures for bases throughout the world. In the Pacific these bases start with islands near Australia and sweep in a great arc through the Philippines to China and Korea. In the Atlantic, Wall Street wants bases from Iceland through the Azores down to Brazil. Already American militarism has built huge airfields in the Middle East.

But this is not all. The American generals want a free hand to convert all Latin America and Canada into auxiliaries of the U.S. armed forces .They want to send officers to indoctrinate the armed forces of the Latin American countries. They want to junk the armaments of these lands and replace them with American arms. Ammunition, parts and replacements thus would depend upon U.S. factories, giving Wall Street a military stranglehold on Latin America.

Thus if Wall Street has its way America will be converted into the most colossal peacetime military camp the world has ever seen. Extension of the draft act is one of the calcu-

During the war, Lewis favored class collaboration and entered into the no-strike pledge. His leadership of wartime strikes later was a result of his conviction that Roosevelt and the American capitalist class would not openly recognize labor as a partner in a coalition government and formalize the relation by the granting to labor of posts in the cabinet and other official positions.

Wechsler concludes by pointing to the danger of Lewis becoming fascist demagogue. Other writers have reached similar conclusions.

This conclusion, however, is Lewis' career demonstrates the based more on the superficial

SATURDAY, JULY 6, 1946

Is it Stalin's aim to overthrow capitalism in the United States and Great Britain and to establish his rule over these two countries and thus control the entire world?

In a series of articles for the Scripps-Howard press (New York World Telegram, June 12, 13, 14) Max Eastman answers this question in the affirmative. Last week we showed the utter faisity of Eastman's "reasoning." He rests his flimsy arguments on a quotation from a book by Stalin, The Problems of Leninism, first published 22 years ago. He fails to analyze Stalinist policy over this period to determine whether the dead letter of the printed word corresponds in any way to the living reality. He offers as gospel truth an old quotation in face of the fact that everything Stalin has since said and done refutes both Stalin's 1924 quotation and Eastman's writings of 1946.

But the irony is that the very book which according to Eastman allegedly proves Stalin's designs for world revolution actually proves the direct opposite. The book Problems of Leninism appeared in two editions in Russia in Spring and Autumn 1924. In the first edition Stalin still defended the traditional Marxist concept of a world socialist revolution. He said that "the main task of socialism-the organization of socialist producton-still remains ahead. Can this task be accomplished, can the final victory of socialism in one country be attained, without the joint efforts of the proletariat of several advanced countries? No, this is impossible . . . For the final victory of socialism, for the organization of socialist construction, the efforts of one country, particularly of such a peasant country as Russia, are insufficient. For this the efforts of the proletarians of several advanced countries are necessary."

Stalin's Revision

But in the second edition of his book Stalin threw out this formulation and substituted in its place the nationalist doctrine, which marked Stalin's departure from revolutionary Marxism and which laid the "theoretical" foundation for "nationalistic socialism." In the revised edition, he said: "After the victorious proletariat of one country has consolidated its power and has won over the peasantry for itself, it can and must build up the socialist society."

This change of line in the interval between the two editions of the same book took place in a characteristic Stalinist manner. No explanation was ever made, no theoretical justification for it was given. It was simply sneaked in. It represented in reality a falsification by the author of the first edition of his own book. All the subsequent editions of the book as well as the English edition base themselves on this second and basically revised version. Eastman is well acquainted with the facts in the case. It has been amply explained by the Trotskyist movement. If Max Eastman "overlooks" all these facts it is because Wall Street's propaganda campaign for World War III requires that Stalin be pictured as a revolutionist.

Yet it was in the name of the nationalist doctrine of socialism in one country that the Communist International was liquidated, and the Communist Parties the world over became converted from revolutionary instruments into pliant tools of Stalin's foreign policy. To them was assigned not the revolutionary role of overthrowing capitalism at home, but the role of border patrols for the Soviet Union.

All the zigzags in the policies of the Stalinist parties, all their twists and turns, all their somersaults, can acquire meaning only if one understands that under Stalinist control these parties have no independent role to play. They are instruments of the ruthless Kremlin regime, betraying the interests of the working class and their socialist aspirations. The Stalinist parties are used as pressure groups in all deals between the imperialists and the Kremlin. Needless to say, the theory of socialism in one country has meant in reality socialism in no country. It was nothing but a snare for the Soviet masses. The Stalinist bureaucracy which stands on the back of the Russian workers is interested solely in the defense of its bureaucratic caste privileges and the defense of these privileges against the Soviet masses. This is why the bureaucracy must maintain a regime of terror. This is why the monstrous bloody purges have been sweeping the tortured Soviet land in one devastating wave after another. This is why millions of Soviet workers are systematically uprooted and condemned to slow death in forced labor camps in desolate Siberian regions.

should have been heard in Congress demanding drastic measures against the profiteers and price-gougers. Instead it was pleading on the outside for Truman to veto a bill that presented "a choice between inflation with a statute and inflation without one."

Why was there only this choice? Because there were no real labor representatives to fight in Congress for an effective bill.

How much longer will the workers, the union militants, tolerate this situation? How much longer will they heed the false arguments of the union leaders that "now is not the time" for a labor party? Will the time be when the labor unions are shackled by antilabor laws, when the workers are weakened and demoralized by slashed living standards?

If there is one great lesson to be learned from the events in Washington, it is that labor must have its own party, its own political instrument — and it can't safely stall any longer on the vital task of building that party.

An insistent and powerful demand must go up from labor's ranks: "Build the Labor Party!" Spur the union leaders to action and start the ball rolling for a labor party NOW!

End Meat Famine!

Last week the meat trust publicly threatened that unless all price ceilings are removed the meat industry will withhold supplies and prolong the meat famine.

Meat packers and corporation ranch owners have deliberately held back meat or diverted it to the black market. There is no real scarcity. Meat on the hoof admittedly is at record levels.

But when Congress restored meat price regulations into the OPA bill (since vetoed), the meat packers in effect told the people: "We don't care what the law is. Pay the price we demand, or else go meat-hungry!"

A tiny handful of monopolists thus dare to withhold a prime necessity and practise open extortion on the working consumers.

By rights not one of these gangsters, black marketeers and extortioners should be outside of jail. Everyone knows they have flouted price ceilings and cooperated in the black market.

Yet the OPA handed them price increase after price increase. The government has given them billions in subsidies. Their admitted net profits rose nearly 300 per cent during the war. Today, meat profits are fantastic.

Last January, when the meat trust drove the CIO Packinghouse Workers on strike, Truman promptly seized the plants on the pretext. of a threatened meat famine. He used the govlated steps in that direction.

Withdraw The Troops

On June 28 came a cool announcement by Acting Secretary of State Acheson that United States marines will be held in China. This was the official response to last week's demonstration of 100,000 Chinese in Shanghai who carried placards reading: "U. S. Army - Go Back to Your Home Sweet Home," "Down With U.S. Dollar Diplomacy," and "Americans, Don't Participate in the Chinese Civil War.'

Acheson reached a new high in brazen effrontery by "explaining" that American boys are being held thousands of miles across the Pacific Ocean to guard "supply lines from coast producing areas to the great coastal cities, an essential service that should continue."

On the very same day that Acheson made this announcement, a dispatch from Peiping revealed precisely who benefits from this "essential service." At Tangshan where fighting has occurred, the marines are guarding British-owned coal mines!

The character of this "essential service" was likewise revealed. "The United States Marine garrison in Communist-surrounded Tsingtao," reported United Press, "staged a mock battle yesterday. Marine combat teams carried out simulated attacks against 'enemy lines,' fortified with pill boxes and barbed wire entanglements."

American troops right now are protecting t).e holdings of the Anglo-American imperialists in China.

But Wall Street has more ambitious plans in China than simply clearing the Chinese away from the flag of Standard Oil and the other companies. Wall Street is backing up Chiang Kai-shek. This reactionary regime would collapse overnight if American troops were withdrawn.

Wall Street considers China one of the great prizes of the Second World War. Its resources are among the richest in the world. China, in addition, can become an advance base for the attack on the Soviet Union planned by Anglo-American imperialism.

The Chinese people want American troops withdrawn. The troops themselves want to come home. The American people have no interest in backing Wall Street in China's civil war.

The same holds true for Europe and wherever Wall Street has stationed garrisons.

Consequently the labor movement should demand immediate withdrawal of all troops held abroad.

Why Electricity Comes High

"Never say die on the political front!" This is the motto of the power trust. For years it has fought federal and municipal power plants. It doesn't want the public to find out how cheaply electricity can be sold and still bring a profit. In this battle the power trust counts a great deal on its political representatives in Congress.

Take the federal project for Central Valley, California. Public pressure for the reservoirs that would control floods, provide water and power, was so great the State legislature had to vote for it. The Governor thought it politically advisable to wire Con- quainted with "Mr. Black, the Senator Gurney, Republican of South Dakota, rose up in alarm at the danger enveloping the poor gas and electric company. If $384,000,000 were allotted for this Central Valley project, "the Federal debt would be increased. and there would be no chance of getting back the money for a long period of years."

What argument could be more powerful in a Congress which dumped hundreds of billions of dollars into the slaughter of World War II, just earmarked another eleven billions to build the biggest peacetime military gress his OK. Wall St. Purpose

It suits the purposes of Wall Street to identify this regime of terror with socialism in order thereby to discredit socialism, and Eastman, like so many other bankrupt ex-radicals, is now playing their game of falsification. The Stalinist terror regime reflects the terror of the bureaucracy in the face of a working class it has deceived so cruelly for over two decades. It fears the day of reckoning and retribution.

The fear of the working class which grips the Stalinist bureaucracy is not confined to the Soviet Union alone. The bureaucracy fears revolution abroad no less than the imperialists do. This is why they were able to work in perfect harmony to crush the German working class and prevent it from rising up and settling its own accounts with the Nazis. This is why the Stalinists continue to hold ministerial posts in capitalist cabinets of France, Italy and in other countries. This is why revolutionists are persecuted so mercilessly in the countries occupied by Stalin's armies.

The Kremlin bureaucracy fears the independent action of the workers. Anything the bureaucracy cannot control it seeks to destroy. And revolutions cannot be controlled by bureaucratic edict. This is why any genuine revolutionary movement directed against capitalism must of necessity be likewise directed against Stalinism.

McCarran spoke with authority. Wasn't he personally ac-

Rising Scale Of Wages Editor:

I am very glad to hear that Local 5 of the United Rubber Workers has come out in favor of the escalator clause (rising scale of wages) in union contracts.

However, as you yourself reported in January, 1944, the United Auto Workers International Executive Board went on record in favor of the same demand a year and a half ago: then did nothing about it. It is not enough to pass resolutions in favor of the escalator clause. We must fight to make it effective.

Stalinist Radio Censorship

Editor:

The betrayal of Stalinism in Russia is exemplified by stringent censorship of the radio. A Lieutenant Commander whom I know well was stationed in Russia. He reported that all homes have one-station radios. The frequency is fixed. While the volume is adjustable, it is unlawful to change the volume without permission of the OGPU. It is unlawful to turn the radio off. While this arrangement might

For example, there was acute need of modern housing units, and an irrigation system to increase the domestic food supply. In this way a partial step would be taken, if not toward heaven, then at least to bettering the hellish conditions under which the workers lived and from which they died. men in the industrial relations department of Seven Companies Ltd. were busier than Noah was just before the record-breaking rainstorm so many years before. While one group turned out reams of copy proving the demands of the union were a dangerous attack on "free enterprise," the balance of the legal sharks were desperately seeking some method to undermine the unquestioned solidarity of the union membership.

They pored over the union's advertisement which closed with the challenge: "United in speech, thought and purpose, we will never yield until the social and financial concessions asked by our members are won.'

It happened that one of these corporations lawyers noticed the wording: "United in Speech.' Ah! Here was a likely wedge. Why not start a confusion of tongues! Furiously the entire machinery of the company concentrated on the strike-breaking olan. In a few weeks. company finks and spies began circulat-

Speaking to a brickmason, for example, an innocent-seeming fellow-striker would refer sneeringly to all workers who were not brickmasons, complain that even the mud-mixers were going to get almost an equal wage increase and then unfolded his final master plan: Refuse to even talk with any worker, except in the technical words of each particular craft.

This poison spread through the ranks of the workers until were speaking an entirely different language and regarding each other with suspicion and hatred. Needless to say, the strikers' unity was dissolved in the corrosive acid of boss-stimulated petty personal jealousies and all the issues at stake were abandoned. Thus began the confusion of tongues at the Tower of Babel which has endured for lo, these

Surplus Value By V. Grey

We have seen the capitalist makes nothing out of idle factories or rusting machinery. New wealth, including machinery itself can only be created by labor. And it is a portion of this newly created wealth that the capitalist keeps for himself. It is legal and just that he should do this under a capitalist system with capitalist laws.

He pays doflar for dollar for everything he gets. He buys according to the labor worked up in things. He buys labor power in the same manner. Then he sets his laborers to work. And he sells the things workers produce dollar for dollar according to the total labor worked up in them. He has paid the workers the value of their labor power, or enough for them to live on. But of course not the value of what they have produced.

The source of all capitalist wealth-rent, interest, dividends-"profit"-is the surplus the workers produce over and above what they get paid-the difference between the wages and the product. This is called by Karl Marx "surplus value."

The appropriation by rulers of surplus product was not invented by capitalism.

Capitalism, in fact, claims that there is no such thing as surplus value nowadays. Assuredly the ancient slaves produced surplus value, say the capitalists' professors. "And of course the serfs of the middle ages did." Each of these serfs worked about four days on his own miserable land and two days on his lord's. He had to perform unpaid labor and so create surplus value. The capitalist professors acknowledge that.

"But today" they exclaim—"Why today the worker is paid wages for every day and every hour in the day. soon some twenty-odd crafts | He works for himself, not for the capitalist!"

> If these wise gentlemen saw thirty brand new cars an hour whiz down the assembly line as they felt their muscles get sore, they might think otherwise. But it is quite true that we work for so much an hour in the plant. The hourly wage conceals the systematic robbery of the workers by the capitalist and helps to give it legal justification.

> It is very obvious that the feudal serf was performing unpaid labor a couple days a week. There he was working on the lord's estate without wages-without a return of any kind.

The wages system seems to give a return for all work performed. We look back upon the feudal serf system and think the serfs were an awful gullible bunch of fools. It's so clear to us now that they were just making the lords rich all the time, working on their land for nothing, as they did. The church taught the people that the lord was placed there above them by God. And the people believed it.

Company Is Our "Lord"

But it's hard to see the woods for the trees today. We are working part of every day and part of every hour and minute for nothing, regardless of the testimony of time-The demand for shorter hours cards and professors. We are working part of the time "for through their brains and the mouths that might have revealed the truth were covered with earth. Only the court record remained as indelible evidence of Stalin's monstrous frame-ups.

Occasionally a muffled voice behind bars managed to spread an inkling of what had happened in the GPU torture chambers. But such voices, naturally, were very rare. Consequently, the recent revelations of Victor Kravchenko are of exceptional interest. This former official, who rose to the top circles in the Stalinist regime before choosing voluntary exile, uncovered facts about a frame-up case that was little publicized by Moscow-the trial at Kemerovo in Novosibirsk November 19-22, 1936.

The Kemerovo case followed on the heels of the shocking Zinoviev-Kamenev trial. It constituted preparation for a bigger and better-organized frame-up to make up for the collapse of the Zinoviev-Kamenev show.

purpose of the explosives, said the Stalinist prosecutor, was to "arouse the resentment of the workers against the Soviet government."

The absurdity of this accusation was revealed at the time of the trial by a group of French miners who happened to be touring the country under Stalinist guidance as friends of the Soviet Union. Kleber Legay, associate secretary of the National Federation of Miners in France, wrote an indignant protest upon the return home of the delegation: "As a miner, and knowing perfectly the difficulty of mining, and having worked more than 30 years, during 12 of them as a delegate for the security of the workers in one of the most gazeous mines in France. KARL RADEK

One of the most brilliant journalists in the Bolshevik movement. Prior to the October 1917 revolution he was a close friend of Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht

Radek accompanied Lenin in the famous "sealed" train across Germany to Scandinavia but remained in Stockholm as literary representative of the Bolsheviks until 1918. He became a member of the Central Committee of the Bolshevik Party. Radek understood the counter-revolutionary character of Stalinism and fought against Stalin's rise to power. But in 1929 he made a great political error: He capitulated to Stalin. From then on he devoted himself to denouncing Trotsky. As late as the First Moscow Trial in 1936 Radek threw Stalinist mud at Trotsky, calling him a "Fascist." Stalin paid off Radek by labelling him a "fascist" and making him a defendant in the Second Moscow Trial. Radek got a ten year prison sentence. He has not been heard from since. According to rumor he was shot.

Stalinists Hail Nuremberg; Silent Over Moscow Trials

"An unprecedented historical record of what fascism was and how it functioned has been produced at Nuremberg," declares the June 22 Daily Worker, official organ of the American Stalinists.

If this conclusion is true, then the Stalinists themselves have underlined the fact that Trotsky did not plot with Hitler against the Soviet Union. During the entire eight months of the Nuremberg trial not one word has been breathed about the notorious Moscow Trials which charged Leon Trotsky was in league with Hitler.

Stalin even charged that Rudolph Hess, now in the prisoners' dock at Nuremberg, was the man who dealt with Trotsky. Yet the Stalinist prosecutor has not raised the question of this alleged deal, much less demanded evidence or documents.

Months ago Natalia Sedov Trotsky, the widow of Leon Trotsky, demanded the right to have her representative question the Nazi defendants. Her demand has been ignored.

The truth is such an investigation would serve only to further expose the frame-up in the Moscow Trials. That is why the Stalinist prosecutors at Nuremberg are afraid to grant Natalia Trotsky's demand.

And that is why the Daily Worker, when it mentions the Nuremberg trial, is most discreetly silent about the monstrous slanders in the Moscow trials.

side of you two crazy fools, I know I wouldn't have stayed." He took off his glasses and sat down on the bench in the shanty, wiping the sweat steam off the lenses.

"You sure picked one hell of a night to work" a double, Jake," I said when Jimmy and Tom left the shanty.

"Had to do it, man. Had to do it," Jake sighed. "You know a man can't make out on the money you get here for forty hours, leastways if he's got any extra expenses to pay like I have ... with my kid."

"That's right, Jake," I said. "How's he getting along, now?"

Jake's dark face brooded. He took his glasses. off once again and wiped them with the welllearned motions of a habit acquired long ago. He spoke slowly, almost reluctantly. "The doctor don't think he can do much good. The boy's almost blind now, and the doctor don't think he'll have any eyesight left by the end of the year.

"God!" I said, struck by the idea. "How old is he, Jake?"

"He'll be 13 in December. December 9th." That's rotten luck, Jake."

"I don't know how much money I've spent on that boy." Jake went on. "It ain't that I begrudge the money if it had done any good. Only I just been paying it out every week or so, and the boy's going blind all the same. So I got to put in some doubles every now and then when I can get them. My wife's out working too just so's we can make enough to pay the doctor and and paying the rent as well." "Well, Jake," I said, "You'll make close to fifteen dollars tonight on the keeper's job, counting the time and a half and the six cent shift differential. That'll help a little."

"Yeah, it'll go a little way. Well," he went on, "fact is, we're about caught up now, and this'll be a little bit ahead. I figure on putting a down payment on a suit if I can get one. I ain't had Urge Cut In Diet no clothes in I don't know when, and all my things are getting ragged." Jake and I talked a few moments longer. He put his glasses in their case. I knocked out my pipe, and we went out to work.

We had a bad night last night. The iron stopped running during cast, and we had to push bars into the tapping hole. Then, when we finally got the hole opened up again, we thought the whole front of the furnace was coming out. The iron ran right over the top of the runner and across the floor down at the third gate. chasing Jake away from there so that he ran the ladle over. And coke! The coke poured out of that furnace like a coke oven battery. It was so hot you couldn't get anywhere near the trough. Then, to make it complete, we had to shut down after cast and change two tuyeres.

About five o'clock in the morning I decided that whether or not I finished my work I was going to eat my lunch, so I walked, almost crawled, into the shanty. Jimmy was already there, streaming with sweat, chewing a sandwich and quarreling wearily with the blower. We were all dead tired.

I had just opened my coffee bottle when Jake Buckley came in. I felt sorry for Jake, knowing how tired he felt. since the rest of us were all done in. and he had been there eight hours longer than we had. But more was bothering Jake than just exhaustion.

"Look," he said to me with a funny grin. He held out his glasses. They were broken, both lenses, "Wouldn't you know it!" he said. I looked at the glasses and at Jake. "Will it cost much to fix them?" I asked. "Eight dollars apiece. Sixteen dollars."

He kept staring me in the eye with that queer set grin. "Wouldn't that beat you!" he said. "Would'nt that beat you!"

In contrast, the very next day the lavish wedding of millionaire contractor and shipyard operator Robert Butler's daughter in suburban St. Paul was written up in the local press, with pictures of a huge wedding cake. The story reported: "A half dozen caterer's trucks were parked on the circular driveway this morning with workers busily un-

I can't help but wonder sometimes how the other fellows who were in my outfit are doing. It's not easy to forget those bitching sessions around the fires that warmed our hands and feet and made our C-Rations half edible.

We were about 5,000 miles from home and just a few hundred yards from a spray of shrapnel that I have never seen on any War Department recruiting poster. If anybody had anything they had been meaning to say all their life, they said it in those few hectic hours.

We all had ambitions. Take, Stanley the No. 1 gunner, for instance. He was sick and tired of punching a clock every morning. There was plenty of opportunity in this world for a smart guy" and Stanley was going to take advantage of one of those GI loans and open a gas station.

As I read a headline the other day, RED TAPE BLOCKS GI LOANS, Stanley came to mind. The Veterans Administration has put out a memorandum to warn veterans that there are already plenty of tayerns and filling stations. Opening a new business, in general according to the VA, is "extremely precarious under existing conditions.'

Standard Oil and the Shell Oil Co. were willing enough to give Stanley a machine gun to fight for their world markets but Wall Street of rights. His parents died when he was very young and he was skimping along on $15 a week as a grocery store clerk when he was drafted. I wonder if he found a school that offers the course he sought or if he found a house to live in. I would like to know how he pays his rent, buys his food and gets a new pair of shoes once in a while on $65 a month.

Tony is one man in the squad that we will never hear from again. He was drafted out of a steel mill. He hated the officers, his draft board and the whole rotten system that put him in uniform. We spent many hours together on sentry duty and he told me about the coal town in which his family lived and about the bloody strikes his father was in when Tony was a kid. Then the subject shifted to the first strike he was in during the "sit-downs" in the thirties

When I first met Tony he didn't know much about politics but it wasn't long before he agreed that the working man must take political power into his own hands. One day at the airport outside Nancy, France, a piece of shrapnel struck Tony between the eyes and killed him stated: quietly and instantly.

Saga Of Henry J. Kaiser - By Art Preis-

Senator Bilbo And The Law

- By Ruth Johnson

. . and

At the outbreak of World War II, the Maritime Commission propositioned Henry J. Kaiser to build ships for the government. Kaiser was willing. He put up $100,000 and the Martime Commission put up the rest, including the shipyards to build the ships. In short order Kaiser shook down a cool $9,000,000.

His ambitions aroused by this success, Kaiser set out to become a big-time millionaire. He put up his freshly acquired $9,000,000 and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation "loaned" him the rest - $111,805,000. Out of this deal Kaiser got a brand new steel plant at Fontana, California.

Having reaped a fortune in this spectacular fashion, Kaiser decided to make a real killing. He cooked up a scheme to make 5,000 mammoth cargo planes to ferry 500,000 troops a day across the Atlantic. Aviation experts pointed out that Kaiser had never made a plane in his life and that no aluminum was available. However, brains win every time. Kaiser proposed to make the planes out of wood!

$18,000,000 splashed out of the public treasury into the waiting hands of the genius who had discovered the secret of becoming a millionaire. Kaiser set his carpenters to work. But the experts proved right. You can't equip a barn with engines and wings and expect it to fly across the Bay City S.W.P. engines and wings and expect it to fly across the Atlantic. Kaiser's first flying barn is still on the ground.

With the close of the war, the newly-made millionaire entered the automobile business. The government again rewarded his spirit of dare and do. Kaiser got the enormous Willow Run plant which had been built out of public funds during the war.

Then he issued 1,700,000 shares of common stock at $1 and began dumping the gilt-edged paper on an unsuspecting public at $10 a share. The gamble paid off so well that Kaiser decided he'd like a repeat. This time he palmed off 1.-800.000 additional $1 shares of common stock at $20.25.

In these two deals, Kaiser sold $57,000,000 worth of stock. Yet he has neither machinery in place to make cars nor steel for bodies or parts.

These are only the highlights in the remarkable saga of Henry J. Kaiser. But they are sufficient to reveal his secret. All it takes to become a millionaire is to pinch pennies, work long and hard, don't ask the boss for a raise - and make sure a capitalist government runs the country.
