Why Capitalists Like War

This time last year the U.S. monopolists were glumly scanning the economic horizon for storm-clouds of depression. Then Truman's "police action" in Korea changed their gloom to joy overnight. These past couple of weeks the financial sections of the newspapers have carried headlines like those in the photo-montage above with monotonous regularity. Profits at an all-time high!

Almost a billion dollars profit for General Motors alone! More than a billion when profits hidden as "reserve funds" are counted in one year for one corporation. GM has more than $3 billion in war orders to increase the golden flood. And American youth bleed and die in Korea!

A Sign of Bigger Things to Come

capitalism. This crisis, beginning with the reverses of the imperialist adventure in Korea, became aggravated in the "Great Debate" over foreign policy and has now reached its sharpest expression in the rift between the labor leadership and the Truman

The labor bureaucracy did not want this crisis. These "labor lieutenants of the capitalist class" did everything to avoid a political showdown with their capitalist superiors. But the break came despite their wishes, and it has drawn a sharp line between labor and capital on the political field. Only the most compelling pressure of working class discontent forced them to challenge the exclusive domination of Big Business in the war mobilization set-

No Partnership

The last question the labor officials want to raise is the right of Big Business to dominate the capitalist state apparatus; what they are objecting to is exclusive domination. The most striking feature of the labor officials' statements is their demand for "real partnership." The bureaucracy demands a "real" coalition on the model of the Social-Democratic governments that used to flourish in Europe in the heyday of capitalism, with security for labor officials, stable unionism, and a "real" partnership between capital and "labor," that is with the labor bureaucrats.

But this is no longer the heyday of capitalism, but the epoch of its death agony. The American capitalists dream of world empire in the grand style of Nineteenth Century Great Britain whose ruling class was able to amass huge super-profits from its colonial possessions all over the globe. The American labor officials want nothing more than to participate in such an enterprise as privileged beneficiaries; they yearn to become "top-policy level" partners in the imperialist state. Too late! Too late for both imperialism and the labor bureaucracy.

The capitalist world since 1914 has been suffocating in a shrinking world market. Two imperialist wars were fought to seize and dominate this market. The richer the imperialist nation, the bigger its productive capacity, all the greater its need for foreign markets and outlets for capital investment, all the more catastrophic the consequences of this contracting world market.

American capitalism must have the entire globe as its sphere of exploitation, or perish. It came out of the Second World War | ment"; the union officials may delude themselves with the ridicul- the responsibility of President as the victor ruthlessly determined to achieve the goal of world ous idea that it is only a temporary rift which can easily be patched Truman for the mobilization pronastery. But this victory is turning into a tantal The world market has become even more constricted. The Soviet consciousness and the realization of their historic mission through Union remains inaccessible to imperialist penetration. In addition, independent political action.

The walkout of the labor representatives from all government, the Kremlin has been able to shut off large areas of Eastern and war agencies has ushered in a new stage in the crisis of American | Central Europe from imperialist exploitation. Western Europe is a bottomless drain on American capitalism. Europe's militant proletariat continues to be a threat to capitalism. Asia has been swept by an irresistible independence revolution which has ignited the colonial world and inflamed the downtrodden everywhere.

This is the world "victorious" American imperialism aspires to dominate. Can they live in peace with this world - and calmly accept the doom of their capitalist system? Impossible! They must take the road of bloody imperialist war. They must undertake the fantastic program of crushing the European proletariat, reshackling the colonial peoples, and the settling of accounts with the So-

There is an inescapable contradiction between the execution of this monstrous program and the maintenance of class peace at home. This is the point the labor bureaucracy cannot and will not understand. American capitalists, goaded by the unforeseen catastrophe in Korea, have unleashed a program that aims at and imperatively requires the reduction of American living standards.

This is the course dictated to them by the whole world crisis of capitalism. They are being driven not only by greed, but by the eruption to the surface of all the fatal contradictions of the world imperialist system.

The old equilibrium of U.S. capitalism is receiving the first that the whole war program is of a series of violent shocks. The political equilibrium of capitalist rule in America has rested upon the alliance of the labor bureaucracy with the capitalist state. But the labor bureaucracy rests upon the organized might of 15 million workers who are in no mood to accept the program Big Business is cooking up. Seething discontent and anger mount. Herein lies the main reason for the current crisis and the more profound crises that will inevitably follow.

Sharp Struggles Ahead

The labor bureaucracy will be caught between its fundamental allegiance to capitalist foreign policy and its mass union base. Every serious clash between the workers and the capitalists will direct hammer blows at the already shaky political structure and introduce new deep-going contradictions into the relations of the bureaucracy with the capitalist state, and within the bureaucracy itself. This in turn will deepen and sharpen the crisis within America's ruling class.

The historical signpost reads: "Sharper Class Struggles Ahead in America." For Truman the walkout may represent a "disagree- fully omitting any reference to But for the workers it is a milestone in their awakening to MARCH 8 - The breach between the United Labor Policy Committee, representing 15 milion AFL, CIO and independent union members, and the Truman-Wilson war mobilization set-up has thus far brought no major concessions from the Truman adninistration.

After a conference with Truman Key West, Florida, mobilization Czar Wilson stated, "Nothing and nobody must interfere with the development of the mobilization program." That was the sum and substance of his reply to the long list of accusations made by labor Big Business - dominated, enriching the big corporations, allowing prices to run away while wages are frozen.

on Yugoslavia.)

The Yugoslav leaders apparently perialism in the realities of the international situation today.

Such a distorted view of world politics is fraught with dangers and if consistently pursued can lead to catastrophe. For, on the one side, it strengthens imperialism; and, on the other, it helps weaken Yugoslavia's defense against Stalin, to whom such a policy renders political aid and wavering adherence to principle comfort.

The threat from the Kremlin is at the moment undeniable and from most acute; and this justifies any and all practical measures of selfdefense. Belgrade is not alone entitled but is duty-bound to procure material aid from any source whatever. Only doctrinaires take into account the immediate danger and guard against it; carefully weigh the existing relation of forces and exploit to the maximum the antagonisms between the imperialists and the Kremlin, which now induce the former to don a mask of "helpfulness" toward Yugoslavia.

With such blind or dishonest "criticism," the genuine defenders of Yugoslavia have nothing whatever in common. Their criticism centers upon what the any mass influence. In a personal appearance before the Chevrolet local union membership meeting, Reuther tried to recoup his losses. He tried in his speech to take credit for the escalator clause in the GM contract. But no Flint audience could forget that not so long ago Reuther had debated George," Cathy writes, "while Jack Palmer, former president of Local 659, on that very subject, in which Palmer had defended the local union's demand for an escalator clause, while Reuther viciously attacked it.

Reuther injected his typical red-baiting into his speech, holding up a copy of The Searchlight and the Daily Worker, trying to form an amalgam between the two, although it is common knowledge that the Chevrolet op-of the corporation executives who run Truman's war agencies and pressed by the union ranks who demand a defense of their living standards, the labor leaders have been forced in a new direction. They have moved away from their routine path of docile collaboration with and dependence upon the White House with pangs and doubts - but they have moved. The question is: How far will they

They have already gone farther along the new road than they would have dreamed possible a couple of months ago. Dizzied by the speed with which events have carried them, they themselves do not fully realize the distance they have covered. But in the last few weeks they have taken a whole series of far-reaching steps against which they had fought stubbornly for many years.

ESCALATOR CLAUSE ADOPTED

As recently as three months ago, every leading union official, with the exception of Walter Reuther, opposed the cost-ofliving escalator wage program. Even Reuther assailed it up until less than two years ago, when only the Socialist Workers Party and the most advanced union militants advocated it. Today, the escalator clause is the central issue of the struggle over the wage freeze. The United Labor Policy Committee has made acceptance of the escalator wage principle one of the three major conditions for labor's return to the wage stabilization

The United Labor Policy Committee itself is an unprecedented development. For many years the AFL chiefs had insisted they would engage in no joint defensive action with the CIO short of merger into one organization under the AFL's terms. But today they are united in joint action with the CIO leaders through the United Labor Policy Com-

Throughout the last war and early postwar period the labor leaders clung like barnacles to the War Labor Board.

Provoked by the unyielding arrogance No blows-and they came heavy and often-could pry them loose from this wagefreezing agency of compulsory arbitration. Yet today, the terrific impact of events since the start of the Korean war has torn them away from Truman's wage board and from every other post they held in his war set-up.

> Now they have taken two further steps which they long resisted. They have called a national united labor conference of 700 delegates from state and local central bodies to convene in Washington on March 20. The announced purpose of this conference is to organize mass "policing" of prices and to mobilize support for labor's position against the Big Businessgovernment policies.

> Few of these union leaders may admit it — some may not even know it — but both these proposals, for the national labor conference and consumers' enforcement of price ceilings, are adaptations of proposals advanced by the Trotskyists and The Militant over the past decade at every stage of the developing labor struggle under war conditions. The union officials, it is true, have distorted and narrowed what the Trotskyists proposed and are trying to confine these measures within a bureaucratically-limited frame-work. But the fact that they have accepted even the form, if not the substance, of these proposals represents a marked departure from their past poli-

We Trotskyists are not possessed of prophetic vision. We did not advocate all these measures and foresee their adoption in some form by the union movement through any special mental powers. What we do possess is a clear understanding of the irreconcilable struggle between capital and labor and the irrepressible drive of American imperialism to a new world war. From this we derived our recognition of the fact that American labor faces a terrible offensive against its rights and living standards and could formulate the program necessary to counter this offensive.

Break with Capitalist Politics!

The union leaders, dragging their feet and resisting all the way, have belatedly and one by one adopted in their own fashion these measures. But they do not grasp the real basis for them. They have indicated they desire nothing more than to retrace their steps and go back to where they were before. They are badly frightened at the "boldness" of their own recent moves. They want nothing more than to reestablish their political collaboration and alliance with the Trumanites and the Democratic Party machine on the old basis. Their terms are the most meager - in reality, nothing more than the reestablishment of the same corporationdominated wage stabilization board, with the industrialists, the "public" and labor each to have six, instead of three, representatives. If the union leaders can have their way, labor would remain an ineffectual minority, mere window-dress-

They may get such terms. But they would be deceiving themselves - and worse, deceiving the workers — if they believe this will settle the matter and all will be restored as before. This is not simply the issue of the composition and powers of a government board, of a wage formula, of more or less representation in government agencies.

WILL NOT SHARE RULE WITH LABOR

The American capitalists are determined to make labor pay for this war. The insufferable arrogance of Charles E. Wilson toward labor is not some personal shortcoming. He reflects the attitude of his whole class. They think of themselves as the rulers of America by natural and divine right. They monopolize its productive resources, its government, its major political parties. They do not intend to share their rule in the slightest with labor.

In the struggle that has developed between capital and labor over the operation of the war program, the Truman administration has inevitably taken its stand with the ruling class. It has done so at the risk of a political break with labor. But the labor leaders want to prevent that break at all costs. That is why they have remained silent to this day about Truman's responsibility for the present crisis and Murray still blames the situation solely on "the conservative coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats."

But the labor bureaucrats can patch up their political alliance now only with spit and gum. Mightier forces than they are at work to shatter it anew and irretrievably. "You can't go home again," the novelist Thomas Wolfe wrote. And these union leaders can't go back to their old political home and find there the same atmosphere of welcome and toler-

Against their will, the labor leaders have already been driven far from their accustomed rounds. They will be compelled to a new polical road as well, or be swept aside by a new leadership. Already certain of them are toying with the idea of a new party. Louis Hollander, president of the New York State CIO, declared last week that Democrats and Republicans are united in "a reactionary coalition to gang up on the wage earner" and "it is possible that we may have to develop an independent political party not a third party, but a first party of the American people."

If the national labor conference to be held soon in Washington is to prepare a program that will effectively defend labor's fundamental interests, it will have to be broadened to include a full representation of the union rank and file. And it will have to be broadened in program to lay the basis for an independent labor party. All events are pressing toward this solution. Now is the time to grasp it.

The Negro People and Korea

American Negroes share the general opposition of workingmen and women to the imperialist slaughter in Korea, plus a special lack of enthusiasm for shouldering "the white man's burden." The Negro press clearly reveals this sentiment.

Negro America knows from its own segregated existence how hollow and hypocritical is the government's talk of democratic aims. Moreover, they are not impressed by the labeling of colonial revolutions as Kremlin maneuvers. They have maintained stronger ties than the rest of the population with the colonial peoples and sympathized with their aspirations for freedom from imperialist domination when Stalin opposed their struggle, as well as when he approved it. Besides, American Negroes, too, have been called communist merely for demanding their democratic rights.

In their news columns Negro publications usually reprint the handouts of the government Korea or Washington. But the editorial writers, columnists and tackle." letters to the editors reflect the thinking of the masses on whom

THE "FIX" AND CAPITALIST MORALITY

By Fred Hart

My breakfast was spoiled a few mornings ago by the N. Y. Daily Mirror. What upset me was a red-hot editorial on the basketball scandal in New York City. The reason why all these college stars took fixes from a gambler to spoil the betting odds by muffing a few easy shots, I learned from the Mirror, was in their "characters." The cause of this corruption, as in all corruption of people, lies in weak character, it said, and strong moral qualities must be developed first in the home, the school and the church.

This is not a new point of view. But it always sends me running for the bicarb of soda when I read it expressed in sheets like the Mirror. Or in the N. Y. Post, for that matter, where Arthur Schlesinger Jr., the Harvard historian and liberal, bent down from the rarified atmosphere of international anti-communist politics to opine sanctimoniously that he isn't impressed by the argument that most of these college fellows who took a fix come from poor homes and were sorely tempted by what seemed big money. A lot of people are poor but resist temptation, he tells us, and there's no getting away from the factor of weak character.

When I read such papers and such people talking about "moral qualities" and "character" I feel like answering, "Look who's talking!" But that's not satisfying for Militant readers, who like to delve into these matters a little more deeply.

Is Character to Blame?

Billions from the People The first thing that comes to my mind is that if the reason why these college athletes took a fix lies in their inner moral weakness, in some inherent personal defect, then we have to face the fact that there's a lot of weak characters in this world and all the preaching and teaching that's been going on for the past couple of thousand years, at least, haven't seemed to penetrate very far. empowered to do so and, besides, about $3.5 billion of government

These fellows are supposed to be the pick of the colleges, star athletes, quick of body and mind. College sports, as you have no doubt read, build men and character, fair play and the old school spirit. So if these boys have weak characters, imagine the general level of the student bodies.

Besides, these basketball players come from average decent homes and their home training is as good as anyone's. They received the same dose of religion, went to the same kind of schools as the average person. Their characters are no worse and no 'weaker" than most people's.

What all these basketball players have in common is that they come from poor families or at least their folks don't have it easy making a living. And they have a special skill that's in demand and worth money to a lot of people

A substitute player - not involved in the fix - put the matter honestly in an interview: "It was a lot of money. The temptation was too big. If I had been made an offer, I don't think I could have resisted." And, he added significantly, "Besides, it was in

It was "in the air." The atmosphere of the country is corrupt: reserves of government bonds banker is obliged by law to specify the spirit of the fix is everywhere in capitalist America.

You can hear some smart well-heeled gambler putting it to one of these boys: "Whatsamatter - you got rocks in your head? themselves admit that three Everybody from the ushers to the big shots running Madison Square Garden Corporation is getting a slice. Everytime you win a game - the college president's salary goes up and the coach's. Crooked? Look kid - you wanna place a bet with a bookie, just look for the cops in the stands at the Garden. There's a bookie collecting right under the nose of every cop. They don't see nothin' they're paid not to see, too.

"Don't give me the boloney you're an amateur either. You're professional, kid - you're just low paid. They give you that 'athletic scholarship' for your brains? How'd you get that soft job in that rich boys' fraternity house? What's the fin here and the sawbuck there you been slipping off the traveling expenses? You think that rich grad gave you that 'personal loan' because he likes your character?

"You think those punks out there screaming their heads off for you, love you? One off-night and they wouldn't even give you bus-fare home. They all got their bets in and you're money in the bank for them, that's all. Break your leg, pull your arm out of socket, catch a rupture - you think they'll do anything for you then? Look kid, what I'm offering you is just a little bit of what's owed you. You ain't doing nothing nobody else wouldn't do - if they got the chance. So be smart. Look out for yourself - nobody

There's no answer to this argument — the smug moralizing of papers like the Mirror and of self-righteous commentators like Prof. Schlesinger notwithstanding. There's no answer, that is, if you fix your moral standards by the capitalist system's.

Capitalist Moral Standards Basketball players don't read only the sports pages. They don't miss front-page stories like the report of Kefauver's Senate Crime Investigation Committee, after hearing five hundred witnesses, which begins: "The most shocking revelation. . . is the extent of official corruption and connivance in facilitating and promoting organized crime. The committee has found evidence of corruption and connivance at all levels of Government - Federal, state and

They have read the exposure by the Senate Banking Committee's subcommittee, headed by Senator Fulbright, about the corruption in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation - corruption leading into the White House itself. And they have read, too, Fulbright's declaration that what is needed is an investigation into "the general moral level" of the whole executive branch of the government with its "double standard of morality for public office and private life."

Maybe some of them read the heartfelt commentary of Charles (Lucky) Luciano, now operating from Milan, Italy, who was named by the Kefauver committee as the overlord of U.S. vice and crime. Asked what he thought of U.S. politics he answered: "Politics? I don't want to talk about politics. It's too dirty." Even the "honest thieves" like Luciano have contempt for capitalist political morals.

And maybe some of the basketball players have read the articles on the "Washington Gold Rush" by William V. Shannon in the N Y. Post, telling how the Big Business representatives have taken over Washington and "the business climate of opinion and the business way of looking at things have settled over the capital" so that "Washington today is like a Chamber of Commerce convention that seems never to end. . . . Everybody is out to get that fat, that extra reserve in the form of contracts and orders. . . . connections in the right places that will be useful. . . . Everybody is frankly just out to get whatever is going."

Do you expect college athletes to have any stronger characters than the industrialists, bankers, politicians at the highest levels? It's not in the character but the system that molds the character - there's the weakness.

Reuther and the Dues Hike

By Emmett Moore

The Monroe Doctrine is back in the news. Several months ago there was talk of a Chinese Monroe Doctrine for Asia. On Feb. 16 at Lake Success the U.S. announced its proposed "Pacific (Ocean, not intent-Ed.) Monroe Doctrine." State Department spokesmen said the origin of this military alliance of the U.S., Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines and Japan could be found in James Monroe's message to Congress in 1823. Then Gov. Dewey's proposals to include Greece and Turkey in the Atlantic Arms Pact and give military guarantees to Iran, Iraq, Israel and Saudi-Arabia were headlined as a "World Monroe Doctrine." As if to add to the confusion the N.Y. Times argues editorially that the U.S.proposed Pacific Monroe Doctrine is "quite different from the spurious Japanese 'Monroe Doctrine' with its slogan of 'Asia for the Asiatics.'"

Since the public is being bombarded with Monroe Doctrines it is worth looking at the original Monroe Doctrine. In brief, it was the young U.S. Republic's warning to the Holy Alliance. The latter, a combination of European powers, was attempting to undo all the work of the French Revolution and the Napoleonic era by restoring European monarchs to their thrones and it had turned its eyes to Latin America where the colonial peoples had revolted from Spain and were establishing republics. At this point the Monroe Doctrine was proclaimed, stating that European nations should mind European affairs and the New World would mind its affairs; that the Americas were no longer open to colonization or intervention and that the U.S. would consider any attempt to overthrow its sister republics to the south as an unfriendly act.

In its origin the Monroe Doctrine was completely progressive. It was received enthusiastically by the struggling Latin American revolutionists and by the U.S. people for whom colonial rule and monarchy anywhere were hateful and who saw in republicanism the progress of man-

In less than a century the Monroe Doctrine, which had been proclaimed to prevent foreign intervention in Latin American countries, had been perverted into an instrument for foreign this time exclusively U.S. - intervention in these same Latin American countries.

Using its "new interpretation" of the Monroe Doctrine as a cover, Wall Street imperialism set up or overturned regimes throughout Latin America. U.S. marines took over small nations. Territory was seized. Dictators were propped the Americans." In practice, however, it followed the perversion of the Monroe Doctrine with imperialist exploitation and puppet regimes.

The State Department attempt to label its proposed military alliance in the Pacific a Monroe Doctrine is a burlesque on history. Not only are three continents with different interests represented, but three imperialisms — U.S., the British Empire, of which Australia and New Zealand are parts, and the occupied Japanese Empire — are linked with the semi-colonial Of Strike Law. Zealand are parts, and the occupied Japanese Philippines ruled by a U.S. puppet regime. The Australian leaders fear a revival of Japanese military and naval power. The U.S. has made a deal with the Japanese monopolists to rebuild their power. At the same time Australia and New Zealand are being dragooned by the State Department to join the pact as their best defense against revived Japanese imperialism. The shaky puppet government of the Philippines will sign anything that Washington orders it to. Its leaders' only concern is to enrich themselves as much as possible before the enraged peasantry, led by the Hukbalahaps, sends them fleeing.

Out of this alliance of discordant elements U.S. imperialism hopes for a number of things. First, a cloak for its own maneuvers in the Orient. Then the manpower and resources of these countries in the event of all-out war with China. Also the help of Australian and New Zealand troops to put down a revolution in Japan, should the masses there follow the pattern the states must retain the power of the rest of turbulent Asia. In the event of the rise to power of the Hukbalahap movement in the Philippines the job of subjecting the peasants and occupying the country would be expedited by the use of Japanese troops, who have already had the valuable experience of one occupation

This sort of "Monroe Doctrine" would be quite foreign to the mind of James Monroe but it would be quite to the taste of Czar Alexander and Metternich of the Holy Alliance.

NEWARK, March 5 - Immediate repeal by the State Legislature of the New Jersey Utilities Anti-Strike Law was asked today by George Breitman, Socialist Workers Party candidate for General Assembly from Essex County.

"The Supreme Court, in invalidating a similar statute last week, took the position that Congress alone has jurisdiction over anti-strike legislation in the utilities field," Breitman declared. "Governor Driscoll, on the other hand, hysterically contends that to prohibit strikes, or else 'the birthright of our republic' will be destroyed."

In opposition to both these viewpoints, Breitman insisted that "no one, in Washington or in Trenton, has the right to deprive American workers of their right to strike.'

Joseph E. Smith, former Mayor of Oakland, a Truman Democrat.

The first and highly successful public meeting of the campaign, was held by the SWP, Sunday night, Feb. 25th. Filomena Goelman spoke on "The Real Issues in the Coming City Elections." She set the tone of her campaign in the following words:

"Never in the history of the United States, and the history of the wars in which the United response, mass approval or interest as there is in this Korean War. The mass of workers are not interested and are not moved by the reasons given for this war in Korea.

"The SWP believes that out of the coming critical developments there will develop a new leadership out of the working class itself, a leadership which as yet has hardly been heard from. We will hear from the working class in all its sections, the housewives, the Negroes and Mexicans, the youth and the GIs. To all of these people the SWP puts forward the idea that the only solution to this American and world crisis is workers' control of the factories, States has fought, has there been the mines, the mills, the railroads, such a lack of genuine mass the housing projects — in short, a Workers and Farmers Government."
