The New Hampshire Primaries

President Truman's statement that presidential primaries are "eyewash" offended a number of New Hampshire Democrats and no doubt contributed to the defeat of Truman convention delegates by those favoring Senator Kefauver. But that does not change the fact that the presidential primary elections are eyewash — a hoax designed to fool the people into thinking that they play a decisive or even important part in determining who will get the nominations of the capitalist parties.

The truth is that in 31 states the Democratic and Republican convention delegates are chosen directly by the machines and obey the commands of the machines, not of the party members. In 17 other states, primaries are held, not this play into the hands of but in 15 of these the convention delegates are not committed to support the candidate they claim to represent; in Wisconsin they must support him only so long as he gets 10% of the convention vote; and in New Hampshire alone are they committed to keep voting for him so long as his name is before the convention.

This fully confirms the judgment of the Feb. 1 U.S. News & World Report: "Politicians, not voters, decide who gets a chance to run for President of the United States. The voters, every four years, as in 1952, only get a chance to decide which man, of those selected by the politicians, they prefer for the job." Behind all the ballyhoo about threatens the freedom to express "grass roots democracy" remains the well-known smokefilled room where a clique of political and financial bosses calls the tune.

Nevertheless, the Democratic primary is not altogether without significance. It shows that Truman is losing the confidence of a considerable proportion of the members of his party (either because they differ with Party in the first prosecution ion leaders who refuse to fight so vigorous, forthright and clear attempt to revive this notorious his policies or because they feel that, despite "the miracle of 1948," he cannot win if he runs again). And that in neapolis trial of 1941, whose vic- like Rosenblum, who are opposed pedient for several years thereturn serves to underscore the political bankruptcy and cowardice of the labor leaders.

While the average Democrat in New Hampshire is getting fed up with his own party leader, the AFL and CIO officials in that state went all-out for Truman in the primary, perhaps even more than the regular Democratic machine. While many Democrats now think it is necessary to get rid of the man who helped them to win a national victory in 1948, the labor leaders continue to tag along tory and who has failed to make good on a single one of his many pro-labor and civil rights promises.

Labor has the power, in alliance with the Negro people, working farmers and youth, to cut right through the whole shell game of the two-party system and its flimflam primaries by setting up an independent labor party that will really represent the interests of the majority of the people and run candidates chosen by and responsible to them.

POOR GETTING RICHER--FACT OR FANCY? By Harry Frankel

A fantastically distorted picture of trends in income distribution in the U.S. is presented in the March 5 N.Y. Times. The report starts with the claim that "the United States has undergone a social revolution in the last four decades, and particularly since the Thirties." The survey, intended to bolster faith in the possibility of "leveling" incomes under capiures cunningly and dishonestly to prove its false thesis.

FEWER POOR?

For example, the report claims that "the very poor have become fewer by two-thirds of their 1939 number." To prove this, it offers the following fact: that in 1939, slightly more than 40% of the family income units got under $1,000 in income, while in 1949, However, a motion to expel 4 only a little more than 10% were under this same $1000 a year ceil-

A "social revolution" implies great relative shift in income. To prove their claim, the economists would have to show that the bottom 40% of the population is getting a larger share of the national income today than it got in the past. This is precisely what the N.Y. Times analysis tries to do at one point. but in order to do it, an outright falsification is equired.

The falsification is worked in this fashion: A chart is used to show that the bottom 40% of the people got a bigger share of the national income in 1948 than in 1939. This chart contains two bars, with the 1948 bar a little longer than the 1939 bar. ## 4th International Lodges Protest With Greece and Spain on Trials

The International Secretariat of the Fourth International, representing 35 working class organizations on all the continents, sent protest telegrams on March 1 to the Greek and Spanish governments.

The telegram to Greek Prime Minister Plastiras was on behalf of the accused in the Nikos Beloyannis trial. These members of the Greek Communist Party, who had been sentenced to death and then pardoned, were being retried with death sentences being asked by the prosecutor. (The court subsequently sentenced eight of the defendants to death.)

The Negro Struggle Quiz for Unionists

By Jean Blake

The American way of life has so effectively segregated Negro and white workers that one of the first tasks in breaking the old patterns and winning equal job opportunities for Negroes is to make their white fellow workers conscious that discrimination exists.

When the problem is discussed, many white workers point to the fact that their unions admit Negroes to membership; they cite "civil rights conferences" sponsored by their CIO district or regional office, speeches made by union leaders at conventions, or union pamphlets supporting Fair Employment Practices legislation, and conclude that Jim Crow has been licked in their unions.

Actually, a much closer examination of the conditions in their plants and unions is necessary, before they can appreciate the many forms that discrimination takes and what can be done to fight it effectively through the unions.

Here are just a few of the questions workers should ask themselves if they want to build strong unions capable of facing the employers' attacks with a solid and united membership:

1. Are Negroes in our plant employed in all classifications? If not, why not? Are there "Negro jobs" and "white jobs"? Is there hiring without discrimination, or are there special requirements that bar colored workers from some types of work?

2. Is upgrading, overtime work and preferred shift assignment completely impartial and fair? 3. Do lay-offs and terminations hit Negro workers harder than the rest, and if so, what is the union doing to change that pattern?

4. Is there any difference in the facilities in the plant that are available to Negro and white workers - rest rooms, lockers, showers, cafeterias, etc.?

5. Is the union fighting all forms of job discrimination through contract demands, grievance procedure, publicity, direct action?

6. Do Negro members serve in union posts on all levels - shop stewards, committees, executive board, officers? If not, why not? Are Negroes limited to special posts, such as FEPC committees, stewards for Negroes only, or for white workers too?

7. Has the union achieved full participation of its members without discrimination in its meetings, picnics, social events, etc.?

8. Does the union take a firm stand against discrimination or does it back down when ignorant white workers or bosses' stooges attempt to stir up prejudice against colored workers?

9. Does the union leadership recognize the right of Negro workers, just as any other group with special grievances, to caucus to formulate their demands and seek redress for wrongs, or does it attack them for criticizing?

There has been a lot of talk lately about the VOLUME XVI "progress" being made in wiping out Jim Crow in America. Examples are given of a few more privileges granted here and there to the privireal test and measure of progress is not what has been gained for the exceptions, but what is the rule, what gains have been made for the huge majority.

For the overwhelming majority of Negroes victories against discrimination in other fields are empty unless equal opportunities to work and to struggle together with the rest of the working class for a better life is guaranteed.

Many Negro - and white - leaders emphasize the importance of education in ridding people of the prejudices they acquire in our society. That is correct. Re-education is necessary for most white Americans. But their classroom is the place where they work and their union. That is where Fights to Keep workers learn most convincingly that they have common interests and bonds stronger than any differences.

A shop steward we know in a Detroit auto plant recently told of an incident that illustrates this. A white woman worker called him on the phone one day to report a grievance that she wanted the union to act on. He asked her whether she had taken it to the union steward.

"Oh, no," she replied. "He's a colored fellow." "Well, this is that 'colored fellow,'" he told her. The white woman had to decide right then and there whether she wanted that "colored fellow" to defend her rights as a worker or whether she wanted to hold on to her precious prejudice shows the correct way to carry on and let the company take advantage of her.

In connection with the recent discussion in this column of the Jim Crow attitude of Donovan, the Steel Workers district director in the Cleveland area, we heard a reaction that we think should be answered.

One reader asked, "Is it wise to criticize the cause they are Negroes, they Steel Workers at this time, when they are en- were not welcome to many of gaged in a fight with the companies which re- their new neighbors. quires the greatest amount of solidarity and unity in the ranks?"

He gave us a sense of where we fit in with the main stream of developments in the world, not only numerically and geographically but also historically. He made it clear that the United States is the only spot left on the globe where even the capitalist class still thinks it has a future. Clarke compared the events of the period lover." A Breath of Fresh Air

By Jean Simon

There are some aspects of the recent national tour by the editor of the Fourth International, George Clarke, that can't be reported in terms of the number of people at meetings, the size of collections, the amount of applause, or the questions asked in the discussion period. Not even choice excerpts from the speech, or reproduction of the full text could indicate the impression that it made on audiences throughout the country.

For many of us Clarke's talk was a breath of fresh air - facts and an analysis of the cold war and a perspective that cuts through the barrage of lies, propaganda and the smug, narrow-minded nationalism that we get every day in the newspapers, on the radio and in conversations that parrot the orthodox capitalist

For a change, we heard a vivid, first-hand description of what people in Europe are thinking and doing about world events. We could understand how they feel about problems that scarcely touch us in our isolated daily life of eating, sleeping, going to work or to school, filling out income tax forms, and figuring angles to "beat the system.'

When Clarke described the May Day demonstrations in Paris, the battle of the Algerian freedom marchers with the French police, we could feel the spirit of people ready to fight for liberty - not just to make speeches about it on the Fourth of July.

When he showed us the French magazine which reproduced the fantastic issue of Colliers with its Orson Welles men-from-Mars story of the occupation of the Soviet Union by American forces. we were able to see it through European eyes. It was no longer a journalistic gag. We could feel the horror they must feel - that Americans are like children playing with a shiny new toy, but one that happens to be the atom bomb.

And when he described the breadth and the depth of the anti-capitalist mass movements in Asia, Africa and Europe, and the attempts of Eisenhower and the American labor leaders chasing all over the world trying to put out the revolutionary fires with dollar bills. it was not hard to understand the contempt European workers anti-imperialist uprisings and anti-capitalist of Independence to the crowd, he struggles today. He showed that the role of the was jeered as "a phony preacher." American government today is as reactionary and futile in trying to revive dying capitalism as were those forces trying to preserve feudalism when capitalism was on the order of the day. Humpty-dumpty capitalism has had its great fall, and Washington is still trying to put it together again.

Finally, with its picture of the real social forces in our changing world - the powerful class forces - Clarke's analysis deflated the bogeyman balloon of Stalinism. Reactionary policies of the Kremlin can no more "contain" the socialist revolution than can Washington.

Another very refreshing aspect of the Clarke tour at this time was that we saw a straightforward revolutionary socialist standing up and telling the truth, not crawling, hiding, dissembling or apologizing. Students in his campus audiences knew they were hearing a different view, a nonconformist interpretation of world events that gave them some new ideas to consider. Liberals saw a genuine radical defying all the capitalist taboos and taking for granted his right to disagree.

And all people, concerned about guarding our civil liberties, were heartened by seeing a man flying, only two policemen were nounced on Thursday, March 6 lieve that the U.S. is fighting for fratricidal disunity has not been guarding them in the most effective way - by using them for the purpose of preserving and extending our right to fight for a better world.
