A New Showdown with Labor

- By William F. Warde -

The International Union of Electrical Workers' strike against General Electric is more than a run-of-the-mill dispute. It is the central struggle by organized labor to beat back the anti-union offensive of big business.

GE's attitude signalizes the further development of a big change in the relations between the major industrialists and the unions. At the end of the war in 1945-47 the corporations tried to smash the union movement. They were beaten back by victorious and determined strike actions. As the postwar boom developed, big business had to reconcile itself to getting along with the unions in basic industry.

Instead of seeking to break them, the industrialists contrived to housebreak the unions by making small concessions from the superprofits they were raking in. They were assisted in this task by the increasing bureaucratization and conservatism of the top union officials.

Recession Threat

Now a new recession is at hand. The pinch competition and the profit squeeze is being felt by the biggest companies. The margin of concessions they care to make to the unions is lessening.

The directors of big business believe that the time is ripe for a drive to shatter the power of the unions. With unemployment mounting and automation proceeding at a fast clip they reckon that the resistance of the labor organizations is weakened.

The groundwork for their assault has been carefully laid by staffing the government agencies regulating labor affairs with their men and by building up an arsenal of anti-labor statutes culminating in the Kennedy-Landrum-Griffin bill passed by the last Congress.

Last year the monopolists singled out the steel union as the most likely target. But the solidarity and stamina displayed by the steel workers in their 116-day strike foiled their

Today big business has centered its assault upon the more vulnerable IUE. Whereas the steel workers as the sole union in the industry could stop all steel production, the IUE can shut down only those GE plants where it has representation.

GE has been notorious for its flerce opposition to unionism. One of its officials, personnel manager Lemuel Boulware, is the author of a union-busting plan which is now being applied by the company.

GE's president Ralph Cordiner is also head of the Business Advisory Council for the Commerce Department, the powerful private rich man's club which includes the biggest of big businessmen and bankers. This elite group which is intimately allied with top government circles constitutes a general staff to map strategy against the labor movement.

Union for failing to comply with the election provisions of the Kennedy-Landrum-Griffin law, IUE president Carey, who sought his intervention to fend off the strike, complained that Mitchell could not even be contacted by phone

The GE formula for union-wrecking is proceeding in five steps.

(1) Make an offer that the union can't accept without total surrender to company dictates. Issue an ultimatum to "take it or leave it." Reject even the union's offer to submit the issues to arbitration.

(2) When the union is forced out on strike, keep the plants open. This is the first time since World War II that any major corporation has tried to operate during a strike.

(3) Encourage and organize strikebreaking by telling the workers their jobs are open and they are legally entitled to cross picket lines.

(4) Provoke violence by insisting that local police accompany the scabs through the picket lines into the plants. In Syracuse, N. Y., for example, on the second day of the GE strike 210 deputy sheriffs piloted non-striking employees through the picket lines into the building. They clashed with 800 pickets and arrested twelve of them. The next day, with the temperature at 40 degrees, deputies turned fire hoses on pickets to clear a path for scabs.

At Lynn, Mass., the police broke up a group of 1,000 pickets who were massed along the route followed by a convoy of 250 cars loaded ed in capitalism and can only be with non-strikers leaving the River Works.

(5) GE is aiming to whip up public sentiment against the union by depicting its strike as an unnecessary personal vendetta of IUE president Carey against the company. Its fullpage ads quote Carey as saying: "I owe GE a strike." And: "If the offer was good, I still would not accept it."

GE Provoked Strike

The truth is that GE's offer was no good. The corporation has been intent on provoking the strike and then smashing it as an object lesson, not only to IUE, but to all other unions.

AFL-CIO president Meany called a meeting of major union heads in Washington last week to confer on the GE situation. This meeting pledged full support to the strike, GE locals affiliated with the Auto Workers, the Machinists and other unions, however, have accepted the company offer rejected by IUE and their members remain at work. This lack of unity is a grave source of weakness which ought to be

The IUE strike concerns the whole labor movement. If GE succeeds in its efforts to break cluding such Americans as Alit, big business will undertake similar unionbusting drives in other industries. The GE pattern is already being applied to Mine, Mill and Smelter members on strike in the Coeur d'Alenes mines in Idaho. The material and moral support of every union ought to be mobilized behind the IUE to ensure defeat of the corporation's

The GE Strike: Bosses Seek Should Socialists Join Battle for Reforms?

In addition to your letter, we have received other inquiries "I'll Not Congratulate" have received other inquiries concerning the differences between the Socialist Workers party and the Socialist Labor party. Moreover, the Weekly People has written on the topic, including an editorial in the Oct. 8 issue "warning" its readers about the Trotskyists. So I will attempt to extend my reply to include questions not directly raised in your letter.

As a spokesman for the Socialist Workers party, let me begin by indicating the areas of agreement. Both parties believe that the main danger confronting humanity today is an atomic war. Both believe that this danger derives from the continued existence of capitalism, and that the only fundamental way to avert this danger is through the establishment of socialism.

The two parties are agreed that the working people as a whole suffer chronic insecurity under capitalism, an insecurity that reaches unbearable levels when the economy goes through ts periodic cycle of depression.

They are agreed that the great social evils of our time, such as race prejudice, discrimination, bigotry, poverty, crime, vice and all forms of ignorance, are rootcured by reorganizing society along socialist lines.

They are agreed that both the Democratic and Republican parties are political machines of big business and that at best you only waste your vote by casting it for such figures as Kennedy - Johnson or Nixon-Lodge. A socialist, in the opinion of the SWP and the SLP, betrays his basic principles if he votes any other way than socialist.

Let us now approach the differences. The SLP places great stress on the views of Daniel De Leon. To make the teachings of the great American socialist leader available to the present generation is highly commendable. But the SLP slights, dismisses or takes a hostile view of the contributions of the many other great socialist leaders, inbert Parsons and Eugene V. Debs.

Workers Councils

The SLP likewise stresses De Leon's concept of the "Socialist Industrial Union." The Weekly People periodically publishes a chart of its structure Campaigning for Socialism and often explains how beautifully it will work in place of the present bureaucratic unions the right of a speaker to be on the Brown campus, there are heard, said: "I might add that people with courage, dignity," capitalism. The first assumption derives from the simplistic notion that the struggle between Stalin and Trotsky was nothing but a power fight between two Russian politicians of little concern to Americans. The notion is simplistic because it leaves out of account the opposing social forces in the struggle and the opposing programs.

Trotsky represented the international working class and stood on the program of revolutionary socialism. Stalin represented the nationalistic, privilege-seeking Soviet bureaucracy and stood on the program of smashing proletarian democracy and usurping power.

A related difference concerns the Soviet Union today. The Socialist Workers party, while opposing the bureaucracy and favoring the restoration of work-Quite the contrary. In the opinion of the SWP, the main source of the war danger today is American imperialism, the dominant sector of world capitalism. The Socialist Labor party, on he other hand, makes none of these distinctions. Its election platform declares that "behind the fateful arms race there is a ierce international struggle beween capitalist imperialism and Soviet imperialism for the markets and raw materials of the world."

The two sides are presented as equally aggressive and equally responsible for the drift toward atomic war. The fact that war is a necessity to capitalism but a grievous burden to planned economy is brushed aside.

Interrelated Struggles

The Socialist Workers party, in contrast, believes that such battles are an integral part of the living class struggle out of which will come forces capable of playing a leading part in the transition from capitalism to socialism. The SWP favors militant struggles like sit-downs and picket demonstrations even if the immediate aim is no more than such a "small" reform as equal service at lunch counters.

The same contrast appears in every field. Take civil liberties, for instance. Dr. Willard Uphaus is imprisoned, Lloyd Barenblatt serves a sentence, Nobel prize-winner Linus Pauling is threatened with prison — all for their political views. The Weekly People is indifferent to the defense of these victims of the witch-hunt.

made democratic, it is charged, the workers would want to flock in! Good replies the SWP. Let Congress pass legislation to democratize the armed forces. The SLP could use its "equal time" in indoctrination courses to brief the armed workers about Daniel De Leon.]

So some people may think that pressure can squeeze concessions from the Democrats and Republicans on such issues? Let them find other leaders. The Socialist Labor party is not interested in leading partial fights or winning concessions. Other wars may have preliminary battles leading to a decisive encounter but not the class war as the Socialist Labor party views it.

"Try It!"

If you were inclined to doubt the efficacy of such action, the Weekly People was reassuring: "Letters to the politicians do get some attention.

The Weekly People even suggested the crassest of reformist illusions: "More letters from our readers may possibly induce some of the politicians to realize that in banning the SLP from free TV and radio speech they are assaulting political democracy. It's worth a try! Try it!"

And the SLP asked its readers to cite "recommendations" of the American Civil Liberties Union against the Demo-GOP moves. That is, the SLP joined in a kind of united action with reformist organization.

What did the SLP seek? To prevent passage of a reactionary piece of legislation and its reform if already passed, They didn't worry about success creating any illusions in the democratic nature of capitalism.

Whom did they press? "Your Congressman and two Senators" none of whom are members of the Socialist Labor party, but Republicans or Democrats.

In other words, the Socialist Labor party sought a patchwork concession from the Democratic and Republican machines. The SLP hoped to get the concession by mass pressure. Not very stiff pressure, to be sure, like a picket line or a public demonstration, but in principle not different from a March on Washington or a Congress of Labor in the nation's capital or similar fighting proposal such as the Socialist Workers party might suggest in a big labor battle.

This action of the SLP might be ascribed to the corrupting effect of decades of participation in the capitalist electoral process, but I prefer to think not. The SLP was putting a toe in the stream of the class struggle.

In fact I feel encouraged to now consider more actions of this nature and in other fields speech. Members of the Socialist Workers party will be happy to greet and collaborate with adherents of the Socialist Labor party in the many areas of the tion is called for.

The Right to Hear

As of this writing, close to 1,500 requests have been received taking up Farrell Dobbs' offer in his first national TV broadcast to send the Socialist Workers platform and the Militant. This extremely encouraging response shows a greatly increased interest in socialist views. The rate of replies are five times greater than we received from broadcasts in the 1956 campaign. It certainly vindicates the judgment of all those who favored an independent socialist ticket this year.

We have published a representative selection from these letters on this page. The volume of the replies and the interest they express refute the contention used by the broadcasters in pressing Congress to pass the bill in August giving the Republicans and Democrats a monopoly of free time over TV and radio. They argued that it was necessary to deprive minority parties of their right to equal time because viewers were indifferent to their message.

The truth is that more and more Americans are eager to learn about socialism in this 1960 campaign. They have never been more concerned about the course of world affairs. They feel that foreign policy is the central issue. At the same time many are unenthusiastic about both Kennedy and Nixon because they fail to see any essential differences in their bi-· partisan cold-war positions.

Ever since the U-2 incident, they suspect they are not being told the truth and are being misled by Washington on such burning questions as Cuba. That is why so many letters hail Dobbs' proposal that U.S. forces get out of Guantanamo Bay.

They want to hear what socialists have to say on socialized medicine, civil rights action, unemployment and other domestic problems. They have a right to know.

We suggest to our readers, old and new, that they commend the American Broadcasting Company (7 W. 66 St., New York 23, N.Y.) for breaking the conspiracy of silence over the airwaves around the socialist candidates. They should also write the National Broadcasting Company, Columbia Broadcasting System and Mutual Network, asking these networks to do the same. (Their address: NBC, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York 20, N.Y.; CBS, 485 Madison Ave., New York 22, N.Y.: Mutual, 1440 Broadway, New York 18,

Free Medical Care for All

A number of letters have inquired about the Socialist Workers party's stand on medical care. The SWP urges the establishment of a national health service which will provide medical treatment and hospital facilities free of charge to every person in this country.

The Republican and Democratic leaders, echoing that hard-shelled monopoly of private practitioners, the American Medical Association, decry such a plan as "socialistic." We consider that a compliment, not a condemnation. For it means that we give first consideration to the health and welfare of the American people, not to the special interests of any private profiteers.

Free public health care is not such a daring innovation. Most of the advanced countries, including the Soviet Union, have had it for decades. Thanks to its Labor party, England adopted a national health service after the second world war. This has been so satisfactory that even the Conservative government hasn't dared to scuttle it and return to private medical practice. The United States, which is supposed to be so up-to-date in all respects, is the only major country in the world that still depends primarily on private care.

In the early history of this country education was regarded, not as everyone's right, but as a privilege of the well-to-do. Progressive people, sparked by the labor movement had to conduct a determined fight for free public education. Why should the care of our citizens' bodies be less of a public obligation than the development of their minds?

Under the existing setup, only the rich can afford proper medical care. The your party's stand on compullower income groups, which are the hard-sory health insurance. est hit by illnesses, get the least and the worst medical attention. Major surgery or medicine, how it could be most the attack of a chronic disease can be a effective and which country has catatrosphe for the ordinary family of the best plan. wage earners.

How can the government pay for this free public health service, it is asked. Take the cost out of $40 billions a year now being spent for wasteful military purposes. Transform the arms budget into a peace budget that can build the hospitals, conduct the medical research, and provide the medical treatment our people need.

Blow to Cold-Warriors

The H-bomb maniacs in Washington and London have been given a stiff jolt by the British Labor party conference's rejection of nuclear armament which would entail withdrawal from NATO and the removal of U.S. bomber bases from Britain.

This stand by British labor follows the fight against the "mutual security" treaty in Japan which came to a head with Eisenhower's projected visit. This militant protest movement, initiated by the students, culminated in the general strike of June 22 involving five million workers.

The emergence of such powerful working class opposition to the imperialist war makers in these two highly industrialized countries, both chained by their capitalist governments to military alliances with the U.S., is a political development of exceptional importance.

The struggle for peace is the most burning political issue of our time. That aim is inseparable from the struggle to abolish the rule of the capitalist profiteers who breed and benefit from modern wars. The ranks of labor are the only force that can carry through that struggle to the end. The movement against nuclear weapons can be initiated by students, intellectuals and others. But if it is not to fade out in impotent protest, this movement must connect itself with the anti-capitalist movements of the working class.

That is why labor's mobilization against the H-bomb and the cold-warriors in England and Japan is so great a contribution to the cause of world peace.

Colonialism in Africa

From a speech, Oct. 10, to the United Nations General Assembly by President Sekou Toure, of Guinea:

"Africa . . . occupies a preponderant place in the expansionist plan of the imperialist powers.

"By subtle maneuvers, and under the guise of economic agreements, these powers are pooling their resources and coordinating their efforts for the building of military bases, which are indispensable for the exploitation of the immense resouces that they foresee.

"Thus colonialism tends to take an international shape that tolerates flags and hymns of African nationalism and apthems, but will not allow one finger to military bases over the world to be placed on its own interests. . . .

"Obsessed by their preoccupation with don't think you can just say we the cold war . . . some go so far as to reproach the Africans for their relations with because if Russia doesn't follow the other half of the world. Of course, the suit then we are in danger of colonialists prefer to be the only ones in being destroyed by Russian

Foe of Racists Seeks Third Party

Your remarks concerning racial discrimination in this country were of particular interest to me, since I have frequently taken issue with "Letters to the Editor" writers here in New Orleans, most of whom write the vilest and most rabid letters imaginable, and hide under a cloak of anonymity.

A little over three years ago I was working as a clerk for the federal government in New Orleans, and I was utterly amazed at the amount of bigotry and hatred that existed among the majority of these employees toward the Negro race. This seemed to be the main topic of conversation at lunch time and during coffee breaks. Whenever they engaged me in such conversation, I failed to understand their attitude of racial intolerance, and that I considered them hypocritical in view of the fact that they were in the employ of a government that was administered under a democratic Constitution. Coincidentally or otherwise, I was released from my position shortly thereafter, despite the fact that I had passed competitive civil service examination to secure it. In the past I have sometimes felt that voting for a Republican or Democratic presidential candidate was a matter of choosing the lesser of two evils, and would welcome the opportunity to have a third choice. W.E.G.

The Reality in Cuba

The reader of American newspapers seeking to gain perspective on events in Cuba encounters assertions such as the following: (1) The population of Cuba is becoming disenchanted with Castro and is plotting a counter-revolution. (2) The population is harassed by a police state seeking to extend its control on a demoralized nation. (3) Because of the frenzy of anti-American propaganda, Americans in Cuba are in daily risk of bodily harm or incarceration.

So marked is the disparity between these assertions and my experience on a recent threeweek visit to Cuba, that I want to cite a few aspects of the Cuba encountered on that trip.

(1) The most striking feature of a huge rally on the 26th of July in the Sierra Maestra section — to whch nearly a million people went — was the enormous personal affection shown to Fidel Castro, and the virtual lack of precautions taken | For the Far East? to insure his personal security in the midst of this vast throng. It's Easy to Learn the Truth Linus Pauling Again About Cuba - Just Visit There Defies Witch-Hunters

By Jean Simon

VOLUME XXIV

Despite all the nonsense in the press inspired by the State Department, one area of our confused foreign policy that the ordinary American can investigate for himself, with ease, is Cuba. My two weeks' vacation there in August convinced me of that.

When I called a travel agency to make arrangements for my trip, the clerk said, "We don't idvise visits to Cuba."

"Why not?" I asked. "Well . . . uh . . . It should be obvious . . . don't you read the papers?" she mumbled.

So I made my own arrangements: Sent an airmail letter to the Hotel Riviera in Havana (recently renamed the Habana Theresa) inquiring about rates and room reservation, received a wire confirming my reservation, and bought my plane ticket.

"Aren't you afraid to go to Cuba?" some of my fellow workers asked me. "Do you hink it's safe?"

"Why not?" I said. "I don't own any sugar mills or oil renewspapers, but they don't they do when they report labor news. I'm going down to see what is going on in Cuba."

Special Student Rate

The first thing I saw when I got off the plane was three gaily costumed singers with guitars, serenading new arrivals. Going through customs was easy, simpler than when I went to Mexico for two weeks' vacation four years ago.

The next thing that caught my eye in the airport was a registration desk for students. In addition to a variety of information folders for tourists, there was notice of a special rate for students of $70 for a month's vacation, all expenses paid (except transportation to Cuba, I assume). If only the American students knew this, I thought. Apparently some did, since I saw quite a few from New York, California, Wisconsin, Indiana and other states in the next two weeks.

One of the things I had read and Republicans over this issue. The only difwas that it was particularly dangerous to carry a camera and try to take pictures. (Cubans are so hostile and suspicious, you know — or haven't you read the
