Resorts of bad repute are allowed to run openly in violation of law, and it is said pay tribute to the right persons. The county commissioners have built a large brick orphans' home across the street from a fine big liquor establishment.

Reform Governor Hanley of the state has appointed one of the ex-sheriffs, now under a cloud, a member of the board that runs the Anderson police

Since serving their county the three ex-sheriffs have bought farms and are "well-to-do."
There are a few pleasant homes in town. The working people live in disgraceful fashion.
All of the ex-mayors and ex-sheriffs, a majority of the ministers, saloonkeepers, keepers of houses of ill-repute, members of churches and the unhappy factory hands, are opposed to Socialism.

HOOSIER GOVERNOR IN A STATE RIGHTS SPEECH

Elkhari, Ind., July 31.—Governor Hanley in an address before the Chautauqua assembly here today took issue with Senator Beveridge's child labor regulation ideas; with President Rooseveit's inheritance tax ideas, and the general proposition that the national government was to take charge of the intimate affairs of the various states in the union. He took the ground of upholding the sovereignity of the states and declared that the state, not the nation, should solve the problems that are coming up for solution.

The mob invaded the settlement Sunday night. There was a large meeting of strikers in session.

The mob led by the sheriff went to the door of the hall and demanded that the owner come forth. It happened that the hall is owned by the Socialist local here.

This fact was told to the sheriff. He at once demanded that the strikers be expelled and the hall closed.

The mob of business men, maddened by the loss of trade because of the co-operative stores and the strike, may yet do murder. The people may stand the outrage for a while longer, but the non-resistant policy is a lard test on that phase of human nature which prompts a man to self-defense and defense of his wife and children and his property.

The Square Deal Tax league has written to the board of review, reiterating its charges that the International Harvester company is a tax dodger and asserting that about $120,000,000 of the harvester stock is held in the vaults of the First Trust & Savings bank.

The league renewed its demand that the board of review dig up the alleged hidden property of the harvester trust, but the board has not departed from its usual schedule because of the communication.

which shows that the miners will stand almost anything rather than resort to viotence.

The report shows disdain, hate and a determination to crush the diggers in the interests of the United States Steel corporation. It also shows that the officials and newspapers of this district are determined to have a riot.

Following 's the report:

Six hundren striking miners, w' started out early today to sweep the entire Chisholm district and intimidate the men who were working, were herded like sheep by ten armed deputies in charge of Deputy Sheriff Magie. They were driven back along the county road into the hall from which they started, and there, after being treated to a ferce tongue lashing from the chief of police, were dispersed.

The strikers assembled at Chisholm and started out along the county road, planning to make such a demonstration of their strength that the men working at the different locations in the Chisholm district would be induced to quit work. Deputy Sheriff Magie was informed of the impending trouble, however, and he had a number of deputies stationed at the locations armed with high power rifies.

The deputy sheriff met the men with ten armed deputies, who completely blocked the road. The 500 strikers stopped on meeting these obstructions and attempted to argue, but the deputies imply ordered them back. Two burly strikers attempted to argue, with Deputy Sheriff Magie, but he caught them by the shoulder and swung ihmen around. Today's session of the board developed the fact that federal, county and city officeholders have been improving their prestige by setting their neighbors' taxes reduced. gained a point, the ore dock workers, who have for more than two weeks been on a strike for recognition of the union and increased wages, voted to return to work.

Many of them resumed labor today. The dock men are not affiliated with the Western Federation of Miners.

All of the employes will be taken back by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway without prejudice, and their status will be the same as it was the day they voted to strike.

The railway officials delivered their final answer to the men this morning. They adopted a kindly tone, stating they were willing to treat with their men individually or by committee on an appen shc p basis, and the men, realizing evidently that unless they accepted the terms offered by the company they would not be able to get back their old places, voted to return to work.

The boy seemed determined to get the job of assisting the woman to her hotel or destination and was demanding the privilege when taken into custody by the officer. He said he ran away from his home at Waukegan and had been eking out a living by carrying grips and assisting passengers from docks and depots, but he found it a precarious method of setting results and wanted to go home and be good.

The police locked him up until his parents may be communicated with.

CORONER'S INQUEST IN MATTHEWS CASE

The coroner's verdict in the death of Miss Laura Mutthews, the beautiful Chicago girl who blew out her brains on a lonely road near Colorado Springs, because C. A. Coey, an automobile dealer of this city, "threw her over," died by her own hand, according to the coroner's verdict, which was rendered yesterday. At the same time the coroner found that A. R. Rumbaugh, the Pennsylvanian who siew himself in the same hotel where the girl stopped immediately upon the receipt of a summons for him to testify at the inquest, also died by his own hand.

Thus the chapter is closed. The evidence seemed to indicate that Miss Matthews died for love of Coey and that Rumbaugh died for love of Miss Matthews. Coey declares, however, that it was a case of murder; that his relations with the girl were nothing anore than good friendship, etc. Sili circumistances indicate otherwise and there seems little doubt in the minds of the officials at Colorado Springs that the coroner's verdict fitted the case.

Rumbaugh, it has developed, served galantly with the Tenth Pennsylvania.

STORY OF A HUNGARIAN AND A CORPORATION

This is the story of how personal injury cases are handled by big corporations when the injured person is a foreigner, unrible to understand the English language, and falls into the power of a man, representing himself as a lawyer, who may be in the pay of the corporation, and "plays" him directly into the hands of the corporation.

Alexander Balogh war an employe of the Chicago & Northwestern rallroad. He was employed in their car shops on February 5, while at work in the shops repairing cars, two fingers of his right hand were taken off on a planing machine. Balogh is a Hungarian and does not understand a word of the English language. He had worked in the shops but four days, and claims that the planing machine was defective and that he was never warned not use it. He is an expert in the use of machine tools and a fluished craftsman.

Lost Finger.

That he was set to do a certain piece of work, and like all the other work men used whatever machine was free, and that the first time he used this particular machine his fingers were caught and crushed off.

M. Weisz, also a Hungarian, came to him immediately after the accident and told him that he was a lawyer, and would help him settle with the company, where Balogh signed a paper that he was told by Weisz was merely, a receipt.

This paper was a release in full for the Northwestern rallroad and said the sorthwestern rallroad and said the sorthwestern rallroad and said the pure was a release in full for the Northwestern rallroad and said told the was a release in full for the Northwestern rallroad and said told the was a release in full for the Northwestern rallroad and said told the was a release in full for the Northwestern rallroad and said told the was a release in full for the Northwestern rallroad and said told the told the said the said to the company where Balogh signed a paper that he was a release in full for the Northwestern rallroad and said told the told the the said th

This paper was a release in full for the Northwestern railroad and said that for the sum of $25$ the injured man waived all claim on the company.

In red letters at the bottom was the statement that the company would not promise to re-employ him.

Could Not Read.

Could Not Read.

Balogh had asked Weisz to make no arrangements that would not include a growise from the combany that it would re-employ him. He could not resad the agreement he signed and depended on Weisz to interpret it for him.

When Balogh went to cash the check for any Weisz told him that he must give him one-half of it. This Balogh pald him. A few days later when Balogh questioned him as to the agreement of the company to give him work Weisz told him that he must have the other half in order to pay him for securing such a promise from the company.

Hears the News.

In a few days Weisz sent Balogh the following letter, signed by Smith, assistant claim agent for the Northwest.

sistant claim agent for the Northwestern railroad:

"C. A. Schroyer, Superintendent Car Department, Chicago Shops. Dear Sir: This is to advise that Alexander Balogh, who was injured at the shops on February 5, has settled his claim in a satisfactory manner and there is no objection, so far as this department is concerned, to giving him employment at any time, although we have not promised him employment."

Balogh presented this at the shops, where he was set to work for two weeks and then discharged.

When R. C. Richards, claim agent for the Northwestern railroad, was seen at his office, 213 Jackson boulevard, he stated that the claim was settled for $25 and showed legal papers, signed, showing that the company had made no promise of employment.

"Balogh was burf through his own."

Expressed Unbelief.

When it was pointed out that it was never proven that he was hurt through his own negligence, that there was never a frial, that the day after the accident Balogn was cajoled by Welsz into signing a release for the company, Richards said:

"Well, I do not believe that Balogh ever gave up that $25."

lawers who handle personal injury cases claim that such a case where a man that loses his fingers would be permanently hindered in his work should receive damages in proportion.

Absurd Settlement.

"The sum of $25 is an absurd settlement in this case," said one attorney. "It has come to be a regular thing for big corporations to settle personal injury cases among foreigners through interpreters, who secure releases for the companies for a merely nominal sum." Hungarians who have been the alleged victims of Weisz claim that he will receive no more cases from them hereafter. Ealogh, who lives at 1179 West Twelsth street, is a skilled, high-grado carponter. He has supported his sister by his work and they live together in his carpenter shop. He fashioned most of their furniture and it is of the best design and construction. His bed and the case of a plano, in a little alcove off the shop, are his own workmanship. Balogh is 22 years old and unmarried. When seen today before his visit to the claim agent he was entirely without money and was looking for work, but without success.

Early this week these men were dismissed from the company's employ. No reason was assigned and it is claimed the accounts are straight. The discharged men themselves refuse to talk other than to say the matter should not be discussed through the newspapers. To a reporter Hogarth said yesterday: "You have no idea how serious that shing is. It is so serious that publication our'nt not to be made of it."

From sources of a reliable nature it is learned that important facts regarding Morgan's plans to gobble up the entire traction system of Chicago leaked out through the auditor's office, and for this reason the men were discharged.

It was a West Side printed who was doing the taiking. He came to Chicago recently with his family, but found that, work as he might, he could not give his family a respectable "deal" in Chicago on account of the high prices of food. Chicago delights in taking a fling at old St. Loo, but it is a fact that half a dozen families formerly of the Missouri town have gone back from Chicago disgusted with the ever-increasing demands of the men who deal in edibles. The suit against the Tribune lease, of course.

In the year 1895 the Tribune company, together with the Daily News, the John M. Smyth company and other big business interests, secured changes in their leases of school lands that would enable them to deprive the children of Chicago, according to the valuation of Expert W. S. Somers, now employed by the New York board of reviews, of at least $50,000 a year on the Tribune lease alone.

The Tribune went happily on its way and put up a million dollar building out of the rents that it did not pay for school lands.

In the year 1905 Judge Dunne was elected mayor of Chicago.

In the discharge of his office he appointed a school board. The school board discovered that the school funds have been decreased by leases of school lands to vested interests until the teachers in the Chicago schools work for less than is earned by a skilled workman in almost any trade.

It found that the Tribune, the Daily News, Hannah & Hogg and John M. Smyth leases were obtained when A. S. Trude, attorney for two of these companies, was a member of the board and acting on the building and grounds committee of the board.

The Dunne school board began a suit to set aside the Tribune lesse.

On June 21 the lawyer for the Dunne school board, Clarence Goodwin, appeared before Judge Windes to state why the suit should be carried on against the Tribune. The attorney for the Tribune company appeared to state why it should not.

The Busse school board attempted to pull the suit off, but fearing too great publicity allowed the arguments to continue before Judge Windes.

Today it was found at the Circuit court that Judge Windes is in California and has not yet rendered any decision on the Tribune case.

At the office of Clarenes Goodwin it was stated that he is out on a vacation and will not be back until September.

Meanwhile the Tribune proceeds merrily on its way, collecting $50,000 a year from the school children. Not only is there a first grand prize that is worth a month of the best endeavors of any one, but there are so many good secondary prizes that everyone is sure to get something.

dressed man, whose name the police would like to know, is amusing himself by branding unfortunate women on the cheeks with a lighted cigar.
A dozen reports of his doings have been made to various police stations within a week. The last outrage was when an automobile of a description similar to the one spoken of by previous victims, pulled close to a surface car and kept alongside until the car stopped, when the occupant of the tonneau leaned forward and pressed the end of a lighted cigar against the cheek of a young woman on the rear seaf. As of a young woman on the rear seat. As the kirl screamed the automobile sped away, its passenger convulsed with laughter. The victim, whose name the police withheld, was badly burned. The man is believed to be some new kind of a desaperate.

Violence in Minnesota

We were assured from a number of sources that the editorial on "Coloradoizing Minnesota" was unfair to the latter state. It was claimed that "conditions were different," and that no such open violations of the law as took place in Colorado would be attempted

There were not lacking those who called us "alarmists" for daring to suggest such a possibility. Yet even before that editorial had reached some of our readers, and before the majority of the letters of protest arrived here, the same outrages that had been committed in the Rocky Mountain state were being repeated upon the iron ranges of Minnesota.

The officials of the Miners' Union had been arrested on a the aggregate membership was 414.718, to $2.38 in the corresponding period of Transportation ... of whom 12.515 were women. Two the present year. As a matter of fact, Clothing and textrumped-up charge, a mob of "respectable business men," led by officers of the law, had attacked a peaceable meeting of miners and zations are in New York City. The had raided co-operative stores belonging to the union, a peaceable parade of Socialists had been violently attacked by ruffianly police, and unresisting citizens had been clubbed and flung into jail, and most significant of all, the same press censorship had been set in and 14,895 members; Schenectady, 54 for 243 collar and laundry workers reoperation over the great dailies that prevailed during the time of the similar outrages in Colorado.

But this time it happens that there is a daily in existence, with its correspondents on the ground, that does not fear to give the various trades the carpenters lead. greatest publicity to every outrage committed there. Because of this with 21,152 members in 187 local unions fact it is probable that the attacks of the steel trust upon its employes can be stopped before the condition exists that arose in the Rocky 142 crafficmen in their respective or Mountains.

NOTE THAT NOT EVEN THE MOST PREJUDICED ORGAN OF CAPITALISM HAS DARED TO CLAIM THAT THERE WAS THE SLIGHEST DISORDER ON THE PART

Supposing that matters had been reversed. Supposing that the miners had gathered a mcb and proceeded to a meeting of the Directors of the United States Steel company, presided over-by Debauchee Corey, and had broken up the meeting, clubbing the millionaire parasites into the street.

How long would it have been before the United States army with Teddy at the head, would have been on the ground. Every member of that mob would have been hunted down though it took the entire energies of state and nation for months. Every daily from the Atlantic to the Pacific would have been filled with screaming accounts of the lawless violence of labor unions, and probably a half dozen men would have been sent to the gallows or the penitentiary.

But these were workingmen. 'hey were organized workingmen, seeking to better the condition under which the work of the world was done. But in bettering the conditions of laborers it is

THIS IS THE CRIME OF CRIMES IN THE EYES OF CAPITALISM.

It is sinning against the god of present society, and for it there is no forgiveness.

There have been columns of explanation written to show that the "anarchy" that has prevailed in Colorado was due to some peculiarity of that state. But it is the same sort of "anarchy" that has prevailed in Chicago and is now existing in Minnesota and will exist wherever Labor endeavors to better its condition at the expense of exploitation.

The only thing that will prevent such outrages is the knowledge that they will not be tolerated by the working class. Hence the strenuous efforts to keep them secret.

If every laborer in the United States could thoroughly realize what is taking place in the Minnesota iron ranges today, and what has taken place in Colorado and other states during the past few years, such things would be stopped, and stopped suddenly.

Just in proportion as it becomes impossible for these crimes against labor to be kept from the working class will they cease.

Just so long as workingmen will take their ideas from the publications of their enemy, just so long it will be safe and profitable to club and shoot and imprison and hang workers.

Approaching Danger

With that frankness which has characterized the management of the Daily Socialist from the beginning it is now necessary to sound a warning. ### More Comments on the Trial

The capitalist press has shown itself a "bad loser" in the Hayood case. It still continues to whine about the verdict.

The Inter Ocean has had an editorial each day since the trial endeavoring to show that the jury was wrong in its verdict. In one

But there were many who, refusing to accept the letter of the law and knowing that its spirit demands the conviction of every wrongdoer, were inclined to believe the Idaho jury should take upon itself the duty of administering a wholesome lesson to an organization that, as an organization, has practically admitted its responsibility for numerous crimes against society.

That count still stands, with an overwhelming majority of the public favoring conviction so far as the federation is concerned. The record still flaunts its bloody pages before the world:

Governor Steunenberg foully assassinated, Superintendent McCormick and Foreman Beck of the Vindicator mine murdered, fourteen miners killed at Independence, the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill destroyed, and a grewsome array of other crimes less important only in the sensational deliberate-ness of their commission.

For these things the Western Federation is and will be held responsi-

For these things the Western Federation is and will be held responsible by the American people. The acquittal of Secretary Haywood in no particular whitens that record. It is red with the villainy that prompted it and red with the life blood of its victims.

The Haywood jury, as we have followed the case from this distance, did its duty in refusing to convict the accused on the evidence before it. It has disposed of the conspiracy charge regainst him. But it has not given a clean bill of health to the Western Federation of Miners nor indorsed the marchistic principles of its lawyers or its leaders.

Yet the evidence in the trial showed that every local of the Western Federation of Miners contained Pinkertons, and that, therefore, every act of the organization was known and interpreted in the worst possible light. Moreover, the evidence showed that these detectives incited to violence, that they not only hunted for evidence, but that they MANUFACTURED it. They wrecked trains, started riots, and blew up depots.

Yet in spite of the fact that the Western Federation of Miners was suffering from outrages such as were never perpetrated against any organization in the history of this country, in spite of the fact that the constitution of the State of Colorado and the United States vas torn to tatters by the Mine Owners; in spite of the abolition of those fundamental rights of habcas corpus and right of trial by jury; in spite of all these things, there was no proof to show that the organization had ever met these methods in kind. That there were individuals who refused tamely to submit to outrage is probably true. We hope it is. We hope that the time will never come when women can be misused, bomes destroyed, murders committed without a few at least resisting.

But the organization as such comes through unscathed. All the stories of an "inner circle" are exploded. All the talk of a murderous conspiracy is shown to be baseless slander.

But the Inter Ocean is harping on another point that is a favorite with capitalist editorials on this question. They make much of the claim that Haywood's acquittal proves the fairness of the laws and disproves the Socialist claim of class justice. Says the Inter Ocean in another editorial

But as long at the constitution endures men who commit crimes and men responsible for the crimes committed by an organization will be com-pelled to answer to the law of the land.

If this is true, why were Haywood and Moyer kidnaped and arried away by the Mine-Owners' association under the shelter of this same constitution, while Senator Borah was permitted to defend them and to still be at large while indicted for timber stealing?

But the comments on this subject would not be complete without some preacher getting into the limelight. In this case it is Newell Dwight Hillis, who has previously gained considerable free advertising on this same subject, which advertising he is now realizing upon in the lecture field.

The reverend lecturer happened to be in Des Moines when the verdict came in and after delivering his verdict against that of the jury on the ground that "the west has been terrorized too long" by the Western Federation of Miners, he proceeded to show his devotion to the ideals of the Carpenter of Nazareth by stating with apparent approval: "I understand that at Cripple Creek, the home of the Western Federation of Miners, there is an organization of former unionists who will ride a man on a rail who tries to start a union

We would commend this interview to those who are accusing the miners of lawless violence.

"My hands are like the ladies at the springs," she thought, "but they wouldn't be if I could help manmy hoe corn for the ladies at the springs."

Her thoughts went back to the time when she had heed corn, not only on her mother's little rocky farm, but also for those who could afford to hire. She had worked indoors and out, at the will of her employers, and it was while lifting some heavy farm machinery that she had received the injury that made her helpless. Only a little hurt it was at first—and she had gone on working, working like the race horse that goes till it drops.

And now her mother hoed for them both, and cooked and washed and chopped wood for them both, and ifted Mirism into a chair in the morning and back into bed at night. And so it was that after ten years of desure and careful grocoming Miriam had blossomed into a strange, exotic beauty, that her first youth had never known.

And so it was that her mother grew gradually thinner, a little more stooped and gray, the lines in her haggard face drawn deeper little by little. She was restless tonight. She tossed and moaned Now and then disjointed sentences came to Miriam's ears.

She lay wide-eyed and still the rest of the night, staring unseeingly at the blank faces of the moonflowers. Whenher mother rose in the gray dawn Mirlam closed her eyes, feigning sleep. The moonflowers had withered under the sun's rays before she could muster courage to face her mother. She praised the meager breakfast and laid plans cheerly for a wonderful quilt—a silk quilt of the pieces given her by the ladies at the springs. Her mother watched her while she talked.

"Did you sleep good, honey?" she asked. "You aint lookin' right peart."

In that home of long ago.

To play the door is here; The street is crisscross there And then to wait, as I used to For the step upon the stair. To count as the footsteps pass, Now near, now faint and far-How personal they sound at night, What company they are.

Some brisk and some sedate, I wonder where they go; And I drowse a little, till suddenly The dear, dear step I know,

The start of joy, the flush,
The tender, happy thrill,
And then! I am homeless and old,
And his grave is on the hill,

For the Small Folk

There is no end to new things for sables. One that appeals mightly is a flown quilt and cover. The quilt proper has upper and under sides of fine soft has a supper and under sides of fine soft has the proper and its proper and under sides of the softest yellow or gray-green. The cover is of sheer linen, the full size of the quilt after the edges are turned over, and is mitered at the corners. The overand is mitered at the corners, and is delicately hand-smbroidered, a fine running vine inside a dainty scallop. A few have lace edging set under the scallop. The embroidered inps of course show on the upper side. Gold safety purs at each corner hold the quilt firmly in its lines envelope, which can be saundered weekly, thus keeping the quilt always fresh and sweet. M. W.

To Amuse the Children

To Amuse the Children

A mother who with her four small children was for a time confined to a boarding house, helped them pass many a rainy day by the following simple device. Seating them around a big table she gave to the oldest a large sheet of brown wrapping paper and a pencil, instructing him to make a line two inches long, it was them passed to the next, who was to make a line of equal length in any direction so that one end of it touched the line of the preceding artist and so on until the paper had been around the table, the object being to see how odd or amusing a figure could be made. Sometimes several rounds were spent or one figure.

The third number of the "Socialist Woman" considerably enlarged and greatly improved, has just come to hand. The cover page bears a cut of May Beals, the southern author. Among the many good things that have been prepared for the reader is an article by Elizabeth Flynn on "How I Became a Socialist Speaker."

Catherine Markham, wife of Edwin Markham, has an article on "Ready-Made Providence," while May Beals contributes a story, "Miriam's Mother," that is very interesting.

The good work done by the "Socialist Woman" so far should assure it even greater success in the future.

Wants a "Red Book."

The exclusive "400" have what they call a "bine book." What if the Socialists also had a similar one? "We could make ours red" for to follow suit. Nowadays all who have been looking for a job knows that he or she has to furnish references and that the employer will trace your record down from the time you were born, and even go so far that you have to give him your parents' record, too.

Would it be more than reasonable that the Socialists had a book where the employers' and parasties' records would it be more than reactions that the Socialists had a book where the employers and parasites' records would be kept and published? I think it would make a great sale to the public and the Socialists would demand that every employment bureau which makes a business of selling human life should be compelled to have this book open to inspection for employes.

Under the present system we do not know what society is doing except what we read in the capitalist papers and printed for money, but if we had a "red book" of our own the Socialists and job seekers would get better information of "society doings."

Believes in Governor Johnson.

Anent your editorial in your issue of July 25, under the caption, "Colorado-izing Minnesota," permit me to say this: It cannot be done so long as John A. Johnson is governor. Governor Johnson is a country newspaper editor and publisher, his 'paper being the St. Peter Herald. He is a plain member of the plain, people and in many respects he resembles the immortal Lincoln. Governor Johnson will enforce the laws and protect property, but it must be an awfully aggravated case of disorders before he will harrass suybody with the nauseating militia.

I know Governor Johnson pretty well from my contact with him at editorial meetings and on excursions, and I feel moreflant that he has no undue friendil.

Federation of Miners is doing is of vast importance in as much that its members have the good sense to vote as they strike—for Socialism. Hence the pittiless persecutions of that organization and its leaders. The struggle for existence and liberty is becoming fiercer every day. Either capitalism or Socialism must conquer. "The nation cannot remain half free and half slave," said Lincoln. Down with capitalism!
