point to the fact that industrial financial depression increase the number of divorces.

The Eureau of Census issued a bulletin of which the following is an extract:

The total number of marriages recorded during the twenty years from 1887 to 1996, inclusive, was 12,832.944. The number annually reported increased from 483,069 in the year 1887 to 83,290 in the year 1906. The increase year by year was by no means uniform. The marriage rate is quickly responsive to changes in economic conditions. A small increase shown for 1893 and an actual decrease in the succeeding year recrease shown for 1893 and an actual decrease in the succeeding year reflect the influence of the panic of 1892, and normal conditions do not appear to have been restored in the matrimonial market until the year 1899. It is computed that if the average annual increase in marriages during the five years ending with 1892 had continued for the next six years, the aggregate number of marriages contracted during the latterperiod would have been greater than it was by 239,813. It is to be presumed that a considerable number of persons in this large total never contracted marriage. This suggests a loss to the community heretofore little considered in connection with periods of financial depression.

The total number of divorces reported for the twenty years, 1887 to 1996, inclusive, was 945,3625. For the earlier investigation, covering the twenty years, 1867 to 1886, inclusive, the number reported was 328,716, or hardly more than one-third of the number recorded in the second twenty years. At the beginning of the forty-year period, covered by the two investigations, divorces occurred at the rate of 10, 900 a year; at the end of that period the annual number was about $6.00.

Word that an agreement had been reached was conveyed to Bailiff Matt at dusk, and he telephoned Judge Richter and the attorneys in the case. The lights in the big court room were turned on, and within Sitteen minutes the court was pack. Lamphere was brought over from the jail and the jury filed into the court room.

Foreman Henry Mill announced that the jury had agreed, and he passed a white piece of paper to Judge Richter, who, after making the entry on his docket, read the verdict:

"We, the jury, find the defendant guilty of arson and that he is 38 years old."

Attorney Worden, for the defense, last night said that a motion for a new trial would be made, and should it be refused, an appeal to the Indiana Supreme Court would follow. Mr. Worden declared the verdict to be ridiculcus. "If he was guilty at all," said the attorney, "he was guilty ef murder. He should have been acquitted."

SCHOONER ASHORE

The fishing schooner Thomas A. Cromwell, of Boston, having a crew of twenty-one, ran ashore on the outer shoals off the Plum Island Lite Saving Station in a thick fog during Wednesday night. The schooner was sailing in a northeast wind, when she struck. Captain Roland Shoulds and one member of the crew succeeded in reaching the beach in a dory, which was half filled with water as it came through the surf. The life saving crew ran out their aparatus and shot a line at the stranded vessel. This was repeated four times, but the fishermen falled to get it. The remainder of the crew managed to get ashore in one of the worst places along the coast, and if the wind increases is liable to go to pieces. The Thomas A. Cromwell is 1128 tons burden and draws about fifteen feet of water. She was built in Essex in 1805. The craft is worth $12,000, and is owned by Thomas A. Cromwell, of Boston.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Nov. 27,-In a frantic effort to discredit the thousands of exploited employes of the potteries and brickyards along the the potteries and brickyards clong the Raritan River who are out on strike since Monday, a wild rumor to the effect that there had been a desperate encounter last night between the troops and strikers of the National Pireproofing Company's works at Keasbey, was circulated early this morning.

Story Looks "Fakey."

According to the rumor the four companies of infantry which Governor Fort ordered to the scome on Wednes-day were asisep in the factory at 10.48 P. M. when forty strikers rushed the pickets posted outside the big fence surrounding the works, hurling stones surrounding the works, hurling stones sentries. The infantrymen on gui

M. Keasbey, vice president and general manager of the National Company.

"Our countrymen," they said, "were assured, rightfully or wrongfuly, that when Taft was elected they would receive better wages. They were cut down during the times of the panic, and this promise was made to them. After Taft was elected they ran upbilis at the stores because they thought they were going to get more money. They say that they are working overtime and that the company can afford to raise their wages to the old rate of $1.56 a day."

Mr. Keasbey and his brother R. P. Keasbey, got W. D. Henry, of Pittaburg, president of the company, on the longdistance telephone, and were told that wages could not be raised.

Arguments were brought to bear on the priests in an effort to convince them that the company really could not afford to pay a higher rate of wage until times were better. In the end they agreed to go be Keasbey, to the homes of the strikers and gather the Hungarians and Poles together in Esberg Hall. There the priests and the officers of the company would talk to them.

Finally the priests, the Keasbey brothers and a committee of business men found a group of strikers in front of the closed door of the hall, and a sort of conference was held. H. M. Keasbey tried to make the semble wages paid at present, and wound up by threatening to start the works up with the aid of strikerskers.

This talk did not intimidate the men in the least, nor did Pather was seated in the Presidential chair have any weight in altering the strikers' determination to stand firm and insist upon an immediate raise in wages. THE ONLY WAY TO SPEND YOUR MONEY.

The money you are to spend to-day and to-morrow, and every day next week, and all the money you are going to spend every week hereafter—that is what advertisers are after. They all want Your Money.

An enermous amount of money will be spent for advertising during the next few weeks. Do you want your call to get the share to which it is entitled? Tou do? How? That's easy. Draw the line between the man who shows his friendliness to your paper and the man who gives The Call representative nothing but excuses. Stop trading with the man who looks at your money only, but refuses to hok into the merits of The Call as an advertising medium. Stop it by transferring your trade to Call advertisers. Do not hesitate to state why you mide the change.

To Be Made in Museum with Live All Inflammable Materials Shipped Cows.

TUBERCULOSIS TEST

Two cows specially brought to New Mrk from a certified herd are to be milked twice a day at the American Museum of Natural History as one of the demonstrations of the free tuberculosis exhibit which is to be opened for six weeks on the evening of November 30. To accommodate the cows, the Charity Organization Society's tuberculosis committee is having a model barn built just to the north of the museum's west wing. A model flairy house also is being erected. These cows, which are absolutely free from tubercular taint, are to be milked and cared for and the milk obtained is to be handled in accordance with the most approved and practical methods of dairying.

The object of milking the cows every morning and evening at the museum is to show the New Yorkers who visit the "World's Fair for Health" the sort of barns and dairy the milk they use should come from who visit the "World's Fair for Health" the sort of barns and dairy the milk they use should come from the milk they use should come from if protection from tubercular contagion through this source is certain. The milk later will be sent to a model city milk store and there pasteurized in accordance with the latest system. The exhibit also will show to dairymen a practical model for constructing a sanitary and inexpensive barn. The two cows as far as is shown will be the first live animals put on exhibition at the museum. The cows in addition to being absolutely free from tuberculosis will also be selected with a view to giving the children pleasure. It is believed that thousands of children will at this exhibit see a cow milked for the first time, as was the case with Ardelia Arcady, who would not believe that milk

Jom Jenkins, ex-champion of Amer ica, was easily defeated by Gussof Mahmout, the Turkish champion, eatch-as-catch-can wrestling, in two falls last night in Madison quare Garden.

The Turk completely outclassed the American, and after the first twenty minutes wrestling had him practi-cally at his mercy. Mahmout weighed about 200 pounds and was in splendid ndition, while Jenkins tipped the ales at 225 pounds, and was flabby in appearance and slow in his move-

At the beginning they showed little

At the beginning they showed little inclination to get down to business, but when once in action they put up an exciting exhibition, at times induging in slugging each other, but were stopped and warned by the referee. The Turk is an adept at wrestling and is thoroughly familiar with all the tricks of the game. Not once during the contest did Jenkins have a look in. Mahmout gained both falls inside of an hour, including the rest. After the match Jenkins and the Turk was the strongest and quickest wrestler he had ever met.

In the first bout the men kept their feet for seven minutes before Mahmout threw Jenkins to the mat. The Turk tried several holds, which Jenkins experienced no difficulty in breaking. Jenkins lay flat on the mat, while Mahmout worked a crotch hold in an effort to turn him over. After working for nearly aften minutes the Turk secured a half Nelson and attempted the strangle hold, which was not allowed. Jenkins finally wriggled out of the hold and regained his feet, but Mahmout quickly brought him to the mat again. In spite of Jenkins' excessive weight, he showed considerable activity and appeared in no way distressed with the rough hauling he was subjected to. The pair then varied their wrestling with a brief fist fight, during which time Jenkins landed two heavy blows on the side of Mahmout's head. The referce warned the men

After a series of holds, from which Jenkins broke away, Mahmout secured another crotch hold and the American was compelled to bridge. Mahmout, without permitting Jenkins to release himself, shifted his hold to a three-quarter Nelson, and throwing his entire weight upon his opponent gradually forced his two shoulders to the mat. securing the first fall in 32 minutes 40 seconds.

After fifteen minutes' rest the two men again took 'up their positions on the mat. Jenkins grabbed Mahmout ardund the body, but the Turk turned quickly, and, breaking the hold, caught the ex-champion around the waist and hurled him heavily to the mat. Jenkins was breathing heavily, but there was no letup in the Turk's work. During all this time Mahmout did not give his opponent a chance to get on top, but kept his ponderous form anchored on Jenkins.

WHAT BRITISH M. P.'S READ.

The five hundred volumes recently added to the library of the House of Commons consist chiefly of political literature—listory, biography and modern me-noirs, together with some volumes of poetry.

Saving the British Museum, the House of Commons has the most complete political library in the country. In some respects it is unique. For instance, it has all the journals of the House from 1847, the earlier volumes in manuscript. It has all the reports of speeches, ranging from the earlier unauthorized sketches to the official records of the shorthand writers of to-day.

to-day.

The library contains nearly seventy thousand volumes and there is not a single novel in it. The most popular volumes are the Parliamentary Debates—for the "flooring" of members by awkward revivals of their previous utterances, and after the Debates, in the order of demand, come the bluebooks, which are complete from the year 1800.—Tit-Bits.

Now, it so happened that the immortal Wagner, when he had given to the world his grand operas, "Rienzi," "Der Fliegende Hollaender," ("The Flying Dutchman"), "Tannhaueser," "Lohengrin," his comic opera, "Die Meistersingers of Nuremburg"), his music-drama, "Tristan und Isolde, and the four dramas of his "Nibelungen Ring" cycle, desired to preserve for the sole use of his institutional theaters in Bayreuth the profoundly sacred work of his composition entitled "Parsifal." His earnest wish in this respect has been history since the day of the premiere performance of the solemn "Buehnenweihfestspiel" at Bayreuth, July 22, 1882. Present day analysis and judgment of Wagner's ideas, as expressed in his music scenes and in his prolific literary works, show him to have been possessed in warriably cared was a faithful characterization, and his manly compassion and gradeur and nobility of mien, as emphasized in the Woodland and in the Temple scenes of the last act, rounded out an exceedingly interesting portaval of the hero.

As Kundry, Mme. The chief objection to the pro-duction of the work elsewhere was that "Parsifal," presenting, as wishes such as the holding of "Parsifal" for performance only in the Bayreuth festival playhouse. The chief objection to the production of the work elsewhere was that "Parsifal," presenting, as it does, certain characters and situations that are allegorically analogous to persons and scenes identified with the life of Christ, can be assured of the reverent attention essential to its proper presentation only when given in a theater such as that at Beyreuth, which is devoted and consecrated absolutely to artistic purposes. And for its adequate and fitting delivery the composer, not satisfied with having builded a composition that is the superior of all operatic writings in the literature of music, personally supervised the provision of a splendidly appropriate mise-en-scene of costume and all minor equipments and of a choral and orchestral personnel that rendered the initial performance of "Parsifal" an event in the annals of the world's opera.

The Wounded King Amfortas was played by Fritz Feinhals, who sang ably and acted with fine discrimination. Otto Goritz appeared as Klingsor and entered well into the spirit of the Sorterer. His singing was distinguished by clear and incisive diction. Herbert Witherspoon, as Titurel, accomplished good work and Julius Bayer and Adolf Muehlmann, who impersons the first and Second Knights of the Grail, were capable members of the excellent cast. Mary Randa sang with properly weir deflect the music of "a voice" in the second act.

The chorus was one of the most delightful features of the presentation. In the Temple scene the ensemble off of a splendidly appropriate mise-en-scene of costume and all minor equipments and of a choral and orchestral performance of "Parsifal" an event in the annals of the world's opera.

KIEPTOMANIA IN THE DRAMA.

A writer in the "Theater Magazine" for November has some interesting opinions about the morality of certain recent plays which have been successful. These plays are called degenerate, and the main argument is as follows:

"This is the day when the thief, male and female, is glorified in our drama. Exit the lady with the loose morals; enter the lady with the loose morals; enter the lady with a past is 'passec,' so to speak. The light fingered lady has come unto her own. The male thiof in the drama we have always had with us—like the poor. 'Raffles' appropriated his friend's little luxurious extras and meantime claimed he was a gentleman! It was a hard stretch, but some people seemed to make it. The highway robber—'road agent'—in 'The Girl of the Golden West' poses for our admiration, and wins an honest, pure girl for his wife as reward for his virtues! Few books of late years have been more successful than 'In the Bishop's Carriage.'
"As' a play it was unnatural and ral aim of every one engaged in the staging of the magnificent work.

The symphonic results attained under the energetic and very scholarly beat of Maestro Alfred Hertz, who conducted yesterday, left little to be desired. The preludes, the music of the "Holy Grail" episodes and the ravishingly beautiful support of the broke out from time to time during and the afternoon, and invariably it was share of it—and deservedly.

The Parsifal was a newcomer, Erik Schmedes, who gave one of the noblest studies of the great role that has been realized here. His voice is a full, even tenor, of agreeable quality, which he uses with the discretion of a "master singer." Even in his most impassioned phrasing he does not force his tones; hence there is dignity and serenity in his declamatory utterance. His stage presence and his handling good girl is unceremonlously and un-Throughout the play there are vulgarities that jar, and incongruities that annoy, and from beginning to end it teaches the moral that reformed vice shall have precedence over continued virtue, which is certainly a very bad idea to incuicate. "Perhaps the most popular of this style of plays is Henry Bernstein's The Thief. a very strong and interesting drama, but obnoxious in its moral teachings. One cannot condone a wife who is a self-confessed thief. In the cold light that Nordau and Lombroso throw upon criminals one might even commiserate because of that undefined thread of insanity that seems to run through the warp and that undefined thread of insanity that seems to run through the warp and woof of the criminal; but in this play we are led to believe that the lady is perfectly sane and normal, merely possessed of the very natural desire to dress well at the expense of some one else. This desire is not at all in-compatible with femininity; in fact, to be quite frank, the woman without it their victory over the few brave fellows who had been battling against them.

The crowd returned, sickened with the expectation of finding the little company of fire fighters buried beneath the smoking debris; but when the smoke and dust cleared away there was the little band crouching over the hose as before. Their captain bent over them in the same position, while the powerful stream was directed at some more effective point exposed by the failing of the wall.

They had watched it as it fell, and had gauged its distance. By a quick movement all at once they had shifted the hose far enough to one side to dodge the wall as it came down, and had taken their chances of getting hit by a stray brick or two rather than desert the line at this critical moment.

MASSACRE AT KEASBY.

Now that Taft and great capitalism have triumphed at the national election and the workingmen of the country, again allowing themselves to be divided on false issues and betrayed by false leaders, have given but a comparatively slightly increased vote for the party of their own class, the ruling powers are hastening to verify the prediction which we repeatedly made during the campaign-the prediction that, unless the Socialist party received at least a million votes, we might expect a reign of terror and reaction at the hands of the capitalist class and its political agents.

The Republican state authorities of New Jersey have taken up the labor question at Keasby in exactly the same way as the Democratic authorities of Alabama took it up with the coal miners last mmer, as the Republican authorities of Colorado took it up in Victor and Telluride and Trinidad five years ago, as the Democratic authorities of Idaho took it up in the Coeur d'Alenes nine years ago, as the Republican authorities of Pennsylvania took it up at Hazleton eleven years ago, as the Democratic authorities of Pennsylvania took it up at Homestead sixteen years ago-as the state and national authorities of both old parties have always taken it up whenever they dared carry out the evil purposes of the capitalist class which finances and directs them both.

The events of Wednesday night at Keasby are inexcusable from any point of view but that of the capitalist class-the class which measures all things by dollars and cents of profit. Sheriff Quackenboss has played the part of a wanton murderer-a paid and servile and cold-blooded murderer, exactly like the shameless creatures that do the bidding of the Russian Czar. And Governor Fort has hastened to blacken himself with the same disgrace, to stain his hands with the blood of workingmen, in order to prove to his capitalist masters that he is a tool upon whose houndlike fidelity they can safely rely.

But back of both these official commanders of massacre, and back of the contemptible fellows who hired themselves out as deputies or militiamen to do the foul work, stands the capitalist class and the capitalist system—a system always and everywhere reeking the capitalist system—a system always and everywhere reeking but unfortunately Parker four years but unfortunately Parker four years.

with corruption and dripping with the blood of the helpless.

And back of that capitalist system—forget it not, you working—men who voted an old-party ticket—back of that corrupt and murderous system stand the men who cast their votes for its continuance.

And they who ought most bitterly to reproach themselves for their complicity in this crime and the other like crimes that may be expected to follow it, are the men who said, Yes, the Socialists are right; yes, Socialism would be a good thing; yes, this existing system is bad; yes, we wish the Socialists could be sure of winning this year; but since they are not sure of winning without our support, we will not give them our support; we will vote against that which we know to be good; we will vote for what we know to be bad; we will vote for capitalism and for the class whose two parties have joined in oppressing and brutally maltreating our class—we will vote wrong, minority on the side of right and freedom and progress and peace.

Recognize that fact, you men who almost voted the Socialists

And they who ought most bitterly to reproach themselves for their complicity in this crime and the other like crimes that may be signally defeated.

"Mob insurance" is the latest thing in the business world in England. Great numbers of merchants are said to be insuring against the chance of their shops being broken into by crowds of the unemployed, who are hungry and ill-clothed, and for whom the government has only promises and policemen's clubs, neither of which serves to fill an empty stomach or warm a shivering body or satisfy a justly discontented mind. England may well take to heart the words of one of her boasted poets-"Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey, where wealth accumulates and men decay." And the United States as well as the mother country might well heed that warning ere it be too late. The best insurance against mob violence is not the sort that corporations sell for a premium, but the sort that governments can give by adopting progressive and humane policies.

When Ben Hanford wrote, three months ago, "If Taft is elected or if Bryan is elected, we shall need The Call worse after election than we need it during the campaign," he was a true prophet. The Keasby crime is but one illustration of the fact. The Call is the only English daily paper in New York to take up the cause of the pressed and terrorized strikers; and if The Call were not in the oppressed and terrorised strikers; and if The Call were not in the field, the capitalist papers would be even more shameless in their misrepresentations than they actually are.

It is worthy of note that Mr. Hearst's "American" has outdone the "Sun," the "Times," and the other dailies which make no pretense of racticalism, in its malicious misstatements of fact concerning the Keasby massacre. We know the Hearst papers well enough not to be surprised at this. But we commend it to the attention of those who have been simple enough to take his campaign talk at its face value.

The American Federation of Labor has been forbidden by the courts to "hoycott" the products of the Bucks Stove and Range Company. That does not alter the fact that the company is a scab concern and that loyal workingmen and sympathizers with the labor movement should refrain from buying from it.

By ERNEST POOLE.

This amazing yarn is not to be read by men of this age. Pass it by, gentle reader. For doubtless at this moment you are on a trolley car, clinging grimily to a strap, you need all your wits, your strength, your time. So do not waste your time on this. For to you it would be the dullest reading.

But to you, oh man of a hundred years hence, if perchance in searching through some musty library shelves, on which are pile! the archives of the past, your eve should light on this old paper, yellow and tattered from age—to you it will be anything but dull! As you read, your lips will curl and your eyes will gleam.

"Oh revered ancestor," you will multer, "what an infernal old light you were!"

But confound you, sir, I was no liar: I was a "yellow journalist," who always spoke the truth. And I do aplemently were to you that never wrote I truer words than these I write to high. Cone more word of warning. I might to make his minety-two mille run on time. In the proceed:

THE DILEMMA OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

By ROBERT HUNTER.

out unfortunately Parker four

The press of the country is much disturbed over the fate of the Democratic party. Such as Ryan or Belmont. Or or their legal retainers, such as Judge Parker and De Lancey Nicoll, and the party would hardly select as their Presidential headed, "Will the Democratic Party Die?"

Since election all papers have been since election all papers have been craft campaign. campaign.

In fact to make any sort of a showing, the Democrats need another Bryan—an idealist—one who can run on the same ticket with a multitude of on the same ticket with a multitude of traction thieves, and keep enough heart to preach sermons upon "Thou shalt not steal." They need another pure minded visionary who can run on the same ticket with the thugs, thieves and scoupdreis who are corrupting our cities, stuffing our ballot boxes, and ruling us like an Italian Mafia, and talk in all sincerity upon upon "Let the people rule."

But such men are rare, and just now no commodity seems less plentiful in the Democratic market than this very commodity of good names. Had William R. Hearst after the Mayorality campaign retired to private life he would to-day have been a popular idol; but familiarity has hatched its proverbial chicken, and at present Democrats look elsewhere. But where? Oh, that some new

THE SONG OF THE AGITATOR.

By PETER EUGENE WALLING.

My soul cried out on the mountain, Out no one answered. Eut one one heard my cry.
For the hearts of my people were hardened.
And their thoughts were turned away;
Turned from the seeking of honor
And turned to the greed of to-day.
And what though I cried on the plain. And turned to the greed of to-day.

And what though I cried on the plain.

The cars of the people around me
Were like to the ears of the slain.

So my soul found no solace in giving
Its cry e'er the wilderness there.

And I turned from my seeking in sorrow.

And I turned from my seeking in sorrow.

And walked on the path of despair

Till I came to the realm of the vanquished.

Where hope lies indeed in its shroud.

Where they bend down their necks for the might:

Ind give up their pride to the proud.

Ind give up their pride to the proud.

Ind there 'gainst the altar of Mammon.

I threw down my challenge again

And cried with new purpose and vigor.

The cry of the freedom of men;

Ind the multitude there all around me

Took up the refrain and I heard

Sound like the rushing of waters.

Ind the temple of Mammon was stirred.

The earth seemed to quake with rejoicing

Till the temple of Mammon there fell

And returned to the gulf where it came from.

The desolate reaches of Hell.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

J. E. Finley.—You evidently share the delusion cherished by a large number of persons who have been writing us or keeping us busy on the phone that we have in the office of The Call a large iron bound chest with soven locks, and that whenever we get hold of a bit of news about the Socialist vote we clap it into that box and lock it up tight, for fear it might get into the paper. This theory is very plausible, of course, but it is very plausible in the sequence as received.

very plausible, of course, but it is erroneous. We print the news of the Socialist vote just as fast as we get it. We do not yet know what the total vote in the United States was, and therefore we cannot tell you whether it was more or less than 550,000.

B. L.—If your father became a citizen before you reached the age of twenty-one, you do not need to be naturalized, as his naturalization made a citizen of you. Otherwise in the sequence as received.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE SURPRISING THING.

Editor of The Call:

The attitude taken by Gompers and his supporters in regard to the Socialist resolution, though shameful, is nothing to be wondered at and in perfect accord with Gompers' utterances in the past numbers of the "Federationist."

in the past numbers of the conduct of tionist."

What is hard for a man of prine ciples to understand is the conduct of those Socialist delegates who, after having introduced their resolution and seen it defeated, had the affrontery of giving their votes for Gompers' reelection, every one of them with but one exception, if your report published November 23, is correct.

CLEMENT G. VINCENZ.

New York, November 23.

HOW THE "TIMES" WAS SAVE

Editor of The Call:

In this morning's issue the New York "Times" makes editorial and sarcastic reference to the appeal made by The Call recently for financial assistance.

by The Call recently for financial assistance.

Newspapers, like individuals, when in need call upon their friends. The Call has appealed to its friends—the workers—for assistance, and will doubtless receive it with the understanding, of course, that The Call will devote its columns exclusively to their interests.

It is not so many years ago that the "Times," then in the hands of a receiver, in its dire extremity appealed to its friends in Wall street for assistance, and received it in abundance, with the "Times" devote its columns exclusively to the interests of Wall Street, and it can be truthfully said that the "Times" has ecrupulously lived up to that understanding.

New York, Nov. 15.

"DIVIDING UP."

Fishing, two boys strung their is catch on the same string. Paneling graveyard, they entered the gate divide the catch, dropping two a just as they went inside the centery.

just as they went lands the centery.

Passing, an aged hegro heard the two boys: "Til take this one—you that one—I this one—you that one—I this one—you that one." etc.

The negro listened in dismay and ran away as rapidly as his old legs could carry him. He met his negro minster, who called:

"Disacon, why you run in such terror?"

"Descon, why you run in such terror"
"Declare, parson, I been down youder by de graveyard, and ever de fence heard de devil and de Lord parcelling out de people atween 'em."
The parson laughed at the old man's fright, and made him go back with him to the graveyard to convince him of his error.
The boys were still dividing: "You take that—I take this," etc. Finally one boy asked: "What you going to do with them two at the gate?"
This was more than parson or deacon could stand and both ran pelle mell, neither wishing to take any further chances, no matter what was going on just over the fence. 2.25
