This will he for the purpose of protesting against the arbitrary actions of the police in making so many unjustifiable arrests; against the use of thugs by the boss bakers and also to expose the insanitary conditions that obtain in many of the big bakeres throughout the city. Many speak ers will be heard who are thoroughly familiar with all these conditions and what they will have to tell will be a revelation to many.
On Saturday morning the children of the striking bakers will assemble in 84th street in front of the Labo iple and, headed by a band, the will march through the streets as a protest against the unjust and bruta manner in which their bread-winner are treated in the big bakeries. The will demand sanitary conditions and shorter hours for their parents.

In the afternoon the strikers will parade on the West side through the working class districts in order to get the people there to understand the significance of the strike and help it to a successful termination for the workers by demanding the union label on the bread they use. on the bread they use.

The Jewish Bakers' Union No. 100 has a committee of one hundred out uring their entire district to see to it that no shop that keeps the bread they bake handles the non-union products of a struck shop. If any such is sold they will demand of their bosse to cease supplying that store union bread. Union No. 305 of Harlem is carrying on the same program and over in Brownsville so successful has been the work of the strikers sympathizers that the number of wagone delivering bread in that section has been reduced from twenty-four to ten, and much of the bread delivered is sent back again

The agitation work of the women has shown very good results so far. Numbers of letters from people all over the city state that the writers will hereafter demand only union labeled bread. The Women's Trade

The debt that the nation owes to her is enormous, for at that time the soldiers of France were being splendidly nursed by French Sisters of Florence Nightingale saved England from the blot of leaving her oldiers uncared for. She went armed with the authority of the governmen and established her famous hospital at Scutari. Although she was bound on such Christian work, the newspapers of the time apologized for her and laid stress upon her "womanii-" because there were many who criticised her as unsexed and unwonanly. Those who at this time are fighting the woman's battle for freedom remember that ridicule and abuse is the lot of every reformer who leads the case of Florence Nightingale. We read with interest the opinion of a newspaper of that day, which speaks of "the pseudo-modest who would stultify woman's mind, paralyze her life fatal formula, 'It is not woman's work.' " How she established order where chaos had been, nursed the wounded back to life, and soothed the last hours of the dying is a glorious page in English history. The nation showed its gratitude to her by subscribing to a testimonial fund which quickly rose to £50,000, but which, at Florence Nightingale's desire, was devoted to the founding of an institution for the training nurses, which is now known as the 'Nightingale Home" at St. Thomas's Hospital. It is, of course, well known that Florence Nightingale has been nearly all her life a true Suffragist. She wa no doubt led to woman suffrage by John Stuart Mill, who in a famou ter urged her to "stand out" upon the question, as at first she considered that she would help on the reform better by merely working in that par ticular branch of philanthropy which she was of those who signed one of the early petitions on the subject to

ALASKA.

The fight over the stupendous mineral wealth of Alaska is waxing hotter with every day that passes.

There are millions and billions of wealth to be appropriated, and the various capitalistic cliques are fighting over it like famished dogs over a carcass.

There are cliques within cliques, intrigues and counter-intrigues.

There are Cunningham claimants, and Morgan-Guggenheim syndicates, and Ballinger-Pinchot investigations, and dismissals of officials, and appointments of new officials, and the holding up of these appointments.

One group of capitalists has gotten control of Taft and makes him do its bidding. It dictates to him the dismissal of Glavis, and he obeys. It dictates the dismissal of Pinchot, and he carries out orders. It dictates the dismissal of one United States Attorney and one United States Marshal in Alaska and the appointment of others in their places, and he does their behests.

But the other capitalists are not inactive. The Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate being more powerful than all its rivals, the competing capitalists seem to have united for the present against their common and most dangerous enemy. These minor capitalists are not entirely defenseless. They are able to command a large part of the public press, particularly in the West. They have considerable political and official influence on their side. They can compel investigations into the conduct of high officials-yea, indirectly even of the President himself. They can hold up in the Senate appointments by the President. They can hire the ablest counsel in the country to uncover high crimes and misdemeanors.

The fight over the mineral fields of Alaska exposes to public view some of the most repulsive aspects of the capitalist classits insatiable greed, its hypocritical pretensions, its subordination of the public service to its own uses. These are the typical, the normal traits of the leading exponents of capitalist civilization. There is nothing novel about them in themselves. This time, however, they have produced a novel effect, for it is the scandalous wrangle among the various capitalistic cliques for the possession of the Alaska mineral deposits that is wrecking the Taft Administration, paralyzing it, and discrediting it with the American people.

THE EXTRA SESSION.

Governor Hughes evidently desires to signalize his elevation to the Supreme Court by making the end of his career as Governor of New York notable. So he has called an extra session whereby certain pet measures may be passed. Not one of them is of pressing or basic importance. Governor Hughes evidently has been so extreshely good that he has not really discovered the great evils existing in this world. Or else it is fair to suppose he did not desire to.

His administration, in spite of the extra session he has called, really ended last week. During its existence he waged a mighty fight against business abuses. He fought always and he fought hard against the corruption existing in politics, in business-especially the business of public service corporations-and in sports. He desired, probably sincerely, to make all these things honest, as charities, correctional agencies, custodial honesty is understood by those people who live upon a dishonest system of industry. His fight against the machine politicians in both the Democratic and Republican parties shows how he hoped to achieve it.

But his whole effort has been directed toward reforming a hopeless state of affairs. He has accomplished nothing really worth while. His administration may be set down as a complete failure.

The extra session he has called is designed to consider things that in themselves are of little importance. He may be able to HOW TO FORM CO-OPERATIVE STORES AND force them through. If he does, the people of New York will not ited. If he does not, the peop unharmed. Charles Evans Hughes has been a failure as governor because he never honestly, seriously and courageously studied the seal and pressing questions of his times. But he has won applause from the ruling class, because he has been faithful to it and has tried to stop some of the horrible abuses to which it inevitably gives rise.

It appears that inefficient schools are not confined to this city In Connecticut a law was adopted in 1909 which required every child leaving school at the age of fourteen or fifteen to go to work to pass an examination in fractions. The result was that in one of the smaller cities of that state about one-third of the children employed have been taken out of the factories and put back into the schools to learn the rudiments of arithmetic.

The United States Circuit Court of this city is trying to decide whether Bhicaji Framji Balsara, a Parsee immigrant from Bombay, India, is a "white person." He had been admitted to citizenship, but some meddling official conceived the idea that one born in Asia and of the Parsee religion is not a "white person." Aside from the unutterable stupidity of trying to determine the question of race by a person's place of birth and religion, this attempt to debar an in habitant of the United States from the advantages of American citirenship is quite in line with the general tendency to make admission to citizenship more and more difficult. The rulers of this country look upon universal suffrage as a calamity. In the Northern states they dare not take steps toward its direct abolition. But they welcome every difficulty put in the way of the naturalization of immigrants, for the unnaturalized are bound to remain disfranchised.

Another indication of the attitude of our rulers toward universal suffrage is furnished by the bill now before Congress "to provide a civil government for Porto Rico, and for other purposes." legislature of Porto Rico consists of two houses, one of which is elective, while the members of the other are appointed by the President The new bill provides for a senate partly elective and partly appintive, the appointees as well as the elected members to be "residents of and property holders in Porto Rico."

Socialism and City Government in the United States. By FRANK BOHN.

We have been why the capture of the city cannot bring immediate or far-reaching relief to the workers, who furnish the votes. But this does not imply that such a victory is of little importance to the Socialist movement. On the contrary, it is of the greatest significance. The propaganda value, alone, of the Milwaukee victory was probably greater than all other means of propaganda developed by the Socialist party this year. The danger, in such a case, of
