Lend, lead imagination wings; While yonder sun in beauty wanes;-Sontfar away to southern clime, Where souls in cruel bondage pine. In xonder cabin kneels a form That slavery's galling yoke hath worn ; That stavery s going thim cry, In broken accents hear him cry, ("Mest I in bondage always sigh?" The morning dawned in beauty bright, And chisked away the darksome night; But yet it brought no kind relief To him whose soul was filled with grief.

The basy crowd the market throng, And he whose prayer to heaven hath gone; With heavy tread reached the stand Where men are sold in christian land.

His dark eyes flash in deep despair-You little group-his all-stands there;-Alas! deep anguish fills his heart; With wife and children he must part.

The thought is madning—worse than death Of loved ones, dear as hie, bereft;—) He crossed the stand with resolute air, And whispered in the planter's car.

¹⁴ You own my wife, my children dear, And then he wip'd a briny tear: ¹⁵ Me work for you by n.ght, or day, Oh! bid me off, good master, pray."

But soon advanced with haughty stride, He who die Almighty's law defied; The slave cast one dack, withering look, All fear of man his soul forsook. He mised his strong, athletic arm, Then rose his voice in wild alarm-"Yion cast my lot far far away; Me never, work for you a day." Cease! cease these idle words, black slave! Nor longer like a maniae rave; The highest bid hath made you mine? Hanceforth you dwell in distant clime.

The bondman raised his eyes to heaven, Then gazed on those whom God had given; With frantic yell he leaped the stand, Seized fast an axe—cut off his hand.

Then raised his blending arm to him Who vainly thought the prize to win-" Remember sir, again me say, Me never work for you a day." SARAH W

MANUAL LABOR.

WANUAL LABOR. Ws. Raynow, Missionary at Mepili, Af-fish, says: "The effect of the slave-traide hus been not only to make the people toff and large hub to render work disgraceful. To industry and have set the example, working with my hunds as far as the climate would al-fisher the state of the state of the state with my hunds as far as the climate would al-fisher the state of the state of the state with my hunds as far as the climate would al-fisher the state of the state of the state and agricultural departments with my school. Every his large enough must work. Whether is no differencity we have on 'groug' prifs' ' in quir school; all are on the same level. "The effect of this department is three four school; all are on the same level." "The effect of this department is three four school; all are on so fill be king." "The effect of this department is three four the mission it people through that in departy and 3. To make it a source of suppring hub the wants of the people through that in-forts the mission. It has been my sin from hub first to make this mission a self-support in the mission. It has been my sin from hub first on the mission. It has been my sin from hub first on the mission. It has been my sin from hub first on the mission a self-support in the mission. It has been my sin from hub first on the meabled to energy out my detry, and S. in make it a source of sop-port to the mission. It has been ny aim from the first to make this mission a self-support-ing one. If I am enabled to carry out my splans, Ebelieve it will yet be so." We see hy the above statement of the self-sacrificing Raymond, that the influences of shavery and the trade in slaves are the same in Africa and, America. Idleness, Idleness, statis, abpad at noon-day, wherever slavery is kquid. It makes people ashannel to earl the freed upon which they subsist. Labor is looked upon as disgraceful in all suck com-manities. Labor and the laborer are alike despised. Mr. Raymond seems to have tak-en the right course to correct these evis.— Example is every thing in such a case. When men, see those to whom they are necusioned Example is every thing to such a case. (When) men,see those to whom they are neculationed to look for wisdom and superior goodness en-gaged with their ownlpands about, the useful labors of life, their prejudices soon begin to waar away. He is an old friend of manual infor. What a pit that so many who go indor. What a pity that so many who go footh among men as spiritual guides; if they do not despise manual labor, know inching di it are helpless as babies; and the people too often love too have it so. They dislike to see their minister at manual labor. It seems to then beheath his diguity, as if dig-nity consisted in idleneas—or at least absti-nence from hysical exertion. Necessity often induces people to take the right way when they would choose the wrong. The necessi-field of the case have led hing to establish a manual labor school. What nuble feature is that in his school which places the son of the king and the son of the slave on equal the king and the son of the slave on equal fobring? America is yet far too heathenish for such things to be tolerated in good society ! for such finings to be tolerated in good of Some function night do it; but no people of character and standing! How disgusting and alominable are the distinctions which exist altorninable are the distinctions which exist throughout Christendom between the children of a common Father! Success to this hum-ble effort to establish the great doctine of universal brocherhood antoing the beinghted children of injurgel Africa. May the time scon come when industry shall be honorable in this hand of slaves and singe-traders. But slavery must first be abolished. We have slavery must first be abolished. We have thousands of ministes and priests; but where are they who come to the people with such a schools and colleges; but how, many, founded upon such a platform? Alas for this land!— The light has come, but she loves darkness, and is walking in it to a swift destruction.— [Practical Christian.

LABOR.

The most contemptible creature upon the footstool of God, is the idle young man of fachton. Heijs a fool-for he does nothing for hin-solf of society. There is no reason why any one should like him-why the world should desire his presence, or miss his absence. He is a knave-for he eats without labor,
